IGLIGENCE CHARGED
O DRIVER IN KILLING

oner's Jury Holds Fran-Borgesser for Death of Miss Margaret Rahill.

Frank Borgesser, 50 years old, 111 W. Evans avenue, a bank company salesman, was held for $10,000 bond today for criminal negligence after a coroner's jury heard witnesses described last Saturday morning which Borgesser's automobile struck and fatally injured Miss Margaret Rahill, 47 years old, of 14 Delmar boulevard, as she crossed Delmar at Hamilton street.

The witnesses—Sam Henry, a newspaper man on the corner of Edna McCullough of 408 Hamilton avenue and N. S. Wolf of 24 Toadale avenue, University all said that Borgesser made a left turn from Delmar south into Hamilton too near the middle of the street, and that there was nothing to obstruct his view. Miss Ra-hill was crossing Hamilton from east to the west side and testimony indicated that Borgesser did not give her enough space and opportunity to avoid hitting her.

Proctor Vitt pointed out during the course of questioning that the required Borgesser to make a left turn as far over to the right as the street as he could. Witnesses said traffic was light on the street at the time of the accident and there were no machines approaching Hamilton along Delmar which would have caused Borg-esser to hurry in making the turn. The defendant did not make a statement.

After the accident he failed to had to be carried into a drug store for restoratives.

Verdict Given in Death of Miss Martha Brownfield.
A verdict of accident was returned today in the death of Martha Brownfield, 31 years old, nurse Hospital employee, who died Saturday from injuries suffered. Witnesses testified that Brownfield alighted from a cab on street car at the corner of 1172 Holmden avenue, and started to cross the street before the car, struck her.

Chicago Theaters Cut Price For Music-Less Movie Exhibitors today sought to set a strike of musicians for $87 a week.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The strike lived up to its name when today crowds found that only a few of the projecting machine and a phonograph number spanned the pictures shown in the theaters yesterday, when 400 musicians in 400 picture theaters and vaudeville houses went on strike.

Exhibitors said the question of employing four-piece orchestras small outlying theaters was not, while union officers maintained that the dispute concerned the length of a new wage contract calling for an increase from $52.50 to $87 a week.
Employers and musicians went to a conference today trying to reach a settlement.

Most of the larger movie houses closed their admission charge on Labor day and reported satisfactory attendance. At two of the city's largest ballrooms—against the strike also was directed, their owners also are trying to reach a settlement.

Director of a movie theater was made and dancing a fiddler to pay. The music was provided by a mechanical device.
One large theatrical firm managed to keep peace with the union because of a threat to cut musicians in a loop music show for which the firm had contracted to supply an orchestra.

WEEK LIQUOR SEIZED IN RA-VINE TO SEEK ANALYSIS OF "Mtigue" by City Chemist.

"Metique," a favorite drink?
It will be the subject of an analysis by the city chemist today. The instance of the police resulted. A quart and a half of liquor was confiscated at a factory of Theodore G.
Liquor, 907 North Eighteenth street yesterday by detectives investigating an anonymous message. The liquor was being dispensed at the place.
The detectives reported the "Mtigue" is apparently of high alcohol content. They also confiscated a quart of wine, a quart of bottled homemade beer and a bottle of Guinipulos.

RELIANCE CHARGED TO DRIVER IN KILLING

Coroner's Jury Holds Frank Borgesser for Death of Miss Margaret Rahill.

Frank Borgesser, 50 years old, 1111 W. Evans avenue, a bank company salesman, was held for $10,000 bond today for criminal carelessness after a coroner's jury had heard witnesses describe the fatal crash of his automobile which killed Miss Margaret Rahill, 47 years old, of 1111 Delmar boulevard, as she was crossing Delmar at Hamilton street.

The witnesses—Sam Henry, a newspaperman on the corner; Edna McCullough of 509 Hamilton avenue and N. S. de Wolf of 1111 Teasdale avenue, University street—all said that Borgesser made a left turn from Delmar south into Hamilton too near the middle of the street, and that the witness who was crossing Hamilton from east to the west side and testified that Borgesser's car was in the way of the car which was crossing Delmar at Hamilton street.

Borgesser was not out during the course of questioning that the car was not in the way of the car which was crossing Delmar at Hamilton street. Borgesser said traffic was light on the street at the time of the accident and there were no machines approaching Hamilton along Delmar which would have caused Borgesser to hurry in making the turn.

The defendant did not make a statement.

After the accident he aided in the car being carried into a drug store for restoratives.

Verdict Given in Death of Miss Martha Brownfield.

A verdict of accident was returned today in the death of Miss Martha Brownfield, 31 years old, a Barnes Hospital employee, who died Sunday from injuries suffered when struck by a taxicab at the intersection of Sullivan and Broadway streets. Witnesses testified that Brownfield alighted from a taxicab on Broadway street at the corner of Sullivan and that the car started to cross the street before the taxicab had reached the intersection. The car struck her, and she was killed.

It was shown that Fred Satterlie, driver of the car, had no choice but to turn left in the car tracks on the street.

Chicago Theaters Cut Price for Music-Less Movies

Reference Today Seeks to Settle Strike of Musicians for $87 a Week.

Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The silent picture crowd found that only the picture of the projecting machine and a phonograph number accompanied the pictures shown in the theaters yesterday, when the musicians in 400 picture theaters and vaudeville houses went on strike.

Exhibitors said the question of employing four-piece orchestras in small outlying theaters was at issue, while union officers maintained that the dispute concerned the length of a new wage contract, calling for an increase of $10 a week.

Employers and musicians were conference today trying to arrange a settlement.

Most of the larger movie houses closed their admission charges today and reported satisfactory attendance. At two of the largest ballrooms—against the strike also was directed against their owner also is the proprietor of a movie theater—was music and dancing and a smaller to pay. The music was supplied by a mechanical device.

The large theatrical firm made separate peace with the union, slight because of a threat to cut musicians in a loop music-show for which the firm had contracted to supply an orchestra.

OPEN LIGHT FIRED FILM AND 50 LOST LIVES

No Fire* Protection in Irish Movie Hall, Inquest Into Tragedy Shows.

By the Associated Press. IRELAND, Sept. 7.—An old wooden building without any sort of fire apparatus, packed with men, women and children, an unprotected motion picture projector standing in the middle of a little hall, and inflammable films lying on a nearby table with a candle burning at the other end, was the stage setting for the fire in which 50 persons were burned to death Sunday and many others injured.

William Ford, the owner, gave this testimony at the inquest today. He said he did not even have buckets of water or sand for protection against fire.

Patrick Downing, the operator of the machine, sobbed as he described the terrible stampede which followed when two films on the table caught fire. He declared he had not wanted to start the show at all as he did not like the place, but Ford was anxious to stage the first performance.

How the Fire Was Spread.
"When the two films blazed up," Downing said, "I ran over and clapped my hands on them, but someone came along and hit the burning films with a cap and the flames went over onto the other films. The crowd stayed still for awhile, as if expecting the fire would be quenched, then ran to the door."

"I shouted: 'Keep cool! Keep seated!' But they rushed down to the door."

"Honestly, whether it was the excitement or not, I thought there was nobody else in the hall when I rushed out myself."

Another witness related how Mrs. Daniel Collins, whose feet became caught in the bars of a window, through which she was attempting to escape, was held fast there until she was burned to death.

Huddled Groups Perish.
John Davis, a civic guard, said: "About 50 or 40 people were huddled in a corner. I called on them to follow me. I caught two girls and started to rush them to the entrance door, but had only gone a few yards when they stopped and pulled me back. I heard someone shout, 'Come back!' and the girls tore away from me and ran back."

"I looked up the hall and saw that the front of the place, near the entrance, was all ablaze. The spectators were huddled in a mass, clinging to each other with a death-like grip, with horror and fright on their faces. I tried once more to rouse them, and shouting to them to follow, I started to run, dashed through the flames and flung myself down the burning stairway."

"Unfortunately, they did not move, and all perished." Conservative as Memorial Service.
William T. Cosgrave, president of the executive council of the Free State, motored here from Dublin today and attended a requiem mass in memory of the victims.

The village lost an appreciable percentage of its population and scarcely a family is untouched by the tragedy. It was only the second occasion on which a picture performance had been given here.

A crowd of angry people last night broke the windows in Ford's store.

THAN IN 41 OTHER STATES $17.79 Per Capita Compared to $1.79 in Ohio and $2.21 in Georgia, the Other Extreme.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—It cost more than in taxes to be a citizen of Nevada in the fiscal year ending in 1925 than of any other of 41 states for which financial statistics have been made public by the Census Bureau.

Ohio and Georgia stood at the other end of the line. Per capita property and special taxes amounted to $1.79 in Ohio, $2.21 in Georgia and $17.79 in Nevada. Per capita expenditures for maintenance and operation of general departments of the state government, exclusive of payments in connection with public service enterprises, interest on debts and permanent improvements, were $4.67 in Georgia, $3.14 in Ohio and $28.75 in Nevada.

Oregonians, however, shouldered the greatest per capita State debt, $47.08, while Nevadans, who owed nothing, and Floridians, whose share of such obligations was only 22 cents each, were best off in this respect.

Figures on basis of preliminary statements from each of the 48 states disclosed expenditures for all purposes amounting to $1,614,542,230 during their fiscal years ending prior to Jan. 1, 1926, compared with $1,512,628,921 in the preceding year and $517,562,220 in 1919.

Calculated on a per capita basis, the cost of state governments, exclusive of expenditures for permanent improvements, rose to $9.26 for each citizen in 1925, from $9 in 1924 and $4.19 in 1917.

By the Associated Press
COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Sept. 7.—Covering the distance of 12 miles, 2200 feet in 19 minutes and one-fifth seconds, Glenn Schultz of Colorado Springs won the annual Pike's Peak automobile race from the foot to the summit of the famous mountain.
Schultz won prizes aggregating $1500, and possession of the Penrose silver trophy for one year.
Joseph Unser Jr., also of Colorado Springs, finished second, one and three-fifths seconds slower than Schultz's time. Humphrey Bollman was third, reaching the top in 21 minutes 38 and two-fifths seconds.
The roadway yesterday was slippery and uncertain due to three inches of snow that blanketed the peak last Saturday. Schultz's time was more than a minute slower than the record set last year by Charles Myers of Colorado Springs.
It was the second time Schultz has won the race during the last eight years.

WILL SEEK PENALTY OF DEATH FOR ASSAILANT

Police to Base Move Against John Sexton on Assault on Girl, 15 Years Old.

John Sexton, 29-year-old ex-convict, who has been accused of assaulting a 15-year-old girl in a vacant house and of luring four women to vacant houses and robbing them, has confessed these crimes. Chief of Detectives Kaiser announced today.

Three warrants, one charging robbery and two charging criminal assault, were issued against Sexton after the complainants had appeared before the Circuit Attorney. The death penalty is possible for criminal assault.

The women robbed were Miss Mollie C. Radin, 6901 Smiley avenue; Mrs. Hattie Carlin, 6020 Watterman avenue and Misses Charlotte Thompson and Clara Frenz, 5059 Raymond avenue. Mrs. Carlin was robbed when she showed a vacant house to a man who posed as a prospective tenant, the others when they accompanied a man to vacant houses where he had offered them work cleaning wall paper.

After Sexton was identified by the 15-year-old girl as her assailant, Chief of Detectives Kaiser announced he would confer with Circuit Attorney Sidener and seek the death penalty for Sexton.

Offers to Take Life-Term.

"Don't hang me," Sexton begged of Chief Kaiser. "I'll go over and plead guilty and take life. If I get life, my relatives may do something for my kids, but if I'm hanged, they'll disown the kids."

Sexton already is under life sentence in Mississippi, having escaped from that State after being convicted of a crime against a girl.

Sexton insisted his criminal activities in St. Louis had been confined to the cases mentioned and to several oil filling station robberies. He denied he had accosted three girls at Oakland and Hampton avenues last Wednesday night and attempted to drag one into Forest Park, and denied also that he was the "Negro" who assaulted a 19-year-old girl in the park the same night. In some of his crimes, he admitted, he blackened his face to impersonate a Negro.

Description to Other Cities.

Descriptions of Sexton have been forwarded to Toledo and Nashville, where a moron, described as a Negro, committed a series of assaults on women several months ago. Sexton, however, denies implication in those crimes.

PROSECUTOR OF WILLIAMSON COUNTY, ILL., IS SHOT IN LEG Believes Attack Holdup Attempt, but Police Recall Threats Made Against Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch
MARION, Ill., Sept. 7.—State's Attorney Arlie Boswell of Williamson County, center of the Ku Klux Klan and anti-klan fight for many months, was shot through the calf of the left leg late Sunday night as he was returning home from a hard road booster's meeting. Boswell says he believes it was an attempted holdup, but police recall that many threats have been made against Boswell.

Three big holes made by 45 caliber bullets show in his car. The shooting occurred on one of the principal streets of Marion, near his home. No arrests have been made.

KILLS WIFE AS SHE PRAYS AND SHOTS HIS DAUGHTER Nashville (Tenn.) Man Runs Out of House With Girl in Arms; Is Arrested.

By the Associated Press
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 7.—Jerry Peon, 33 years old, shot and killed his wife as she knelt in prayer here early today, then fled from his home early with his 14-year-old daughter, Mary, who had been shot in the head and suffered a broken ankle.

Peon was arrested an hour later, apparently drunk, charged with murder. He carried the wounded girl to the home of a friend.

BABY IS FED ROACH POWDER
Four-Year-Old Brother Then Tells Mother; Recovery Expected.

Edward Perkins, 4 years old, son of Marvin L. Perkins, a motor-man, of 1821A Oregon avenue, wanted to feed his 14-months-old sister, Uldina, yesterday, so he gave her a cracker soaked in roach powder, which he found on the floor, and then told his mother.

Mrs. Josephine Perkins, the mother, rushed Uldina to City Hospital at 7 p. m. and physicians pronounced the child suffering from a solution of mercury poison. Uldina swallowed but a small portion of the cracker and is expected to recover.

He Didn't Care

"Jack" WILL listen to reason, and I succeeded in inducing him to adopt this daily practice of refinement and health protection."

TODAY doctors know that disease prevention is of greatest importance for our physical welfare.

It is commonly known, too, that most infectious diseases find the nose an open gateway.

Consequently the nose must be kept clean and healthy. Daily nasal hygiene is far more necessary than oral hygiene or brushing the teeth.

Yet daily nasal cleanliness is so easily achieved. Apply ARZEN with the provided medicine dropper each morning and evening.

The results are highly pleasant and beneficial. The nasal passages are opened and cleared. Disease germs are routed. One breathes more fully, deeper and better. The whole body benefits.

But the most enjoyable result of daily nasal cleanliness is the associated feeling of fastidious freshness, of personal hygiene, that follows. It adds to our sense of personal refinement.

One never cares to stop daily nasal cleanliness once this easy little custom is adopted.

SPECIFIC USES

Arzen used daily prevents colds. Stops them if started. Excellent for Hay Fever Relief. An aid in sinus trouble. Daily nasal cleanliness prevents infectious disease. Keep the nose as clean as the face.

In defense of inferior shoe dyes—containing injurious solvents (anilin oil or nitro-benzene) statements have been broadcast that all shoe dyes contain these poisons. 4 SENATORS SEEK RENOMINATION IN TODAY'S PRIMARIES

Lenroot of Wisconsin and Moses in New Hampshire Face Bitter Opposition
on Dry and Court Issues.

By the Associated Press.
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 7.—Wisconsin Republicans are settling the issues brought out in one of the most heated primary campaigns in its history at the polls today. Nominees for the United States Senate, governorship, Congress and State offices will be decided in the balloting which will close at 5 p. m. in the rural districts and at 8 p. m. in the cities. There is no Democratic contest.

Irvine L. Lenroot, United States Senator, seeking renomination, is opposed by John J. Blaine, Governor of Wisconsin, the LaFollette candidate for the office, and Frank J. Kelly, who made the race on a wet platform.

Lenroot has stood on his record in the Senate. The outstanding issue has been his position as leader of the administration's successful fight for American adherence to the World Court.

This position has been the subject of a concentrated attack by Gov. Blaine and his supporters, especially in the campaign waged in his behalf by Senator Robert M. LaFollette during the last few weeks.

The prohibition issue also has been a factor in the campaign since from that made by Kelly during the closing days. Blaine, always known as a wet, has made an appeal to the voters through a heavy advertising campaign assuring them he will do everything possible to bring about the return of beer. In his declaration regarding the wet question, Lenroot said when he was elected to office, he swore to support the Constitution, that he intended to support the Constitution, whether nominated or defeated. If nominated and elected, he said if it is the will of the people he will work for modification of the Volstead act.

Herman L. Ekern, Attorney-General, is the Blaine-LaFollette leader of the State ticket. There is a division in the progressive camp, with Fred Zimmerman leading the group opposed to the Blaine-LaFollette ticket, as gubernatorial candidate.

Three-Cornered Fight for Senate Seat in New Hampshire.

By the Associated Press.
CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 7.—The political fate of Senator George H. Moses hangs in the balance today in Senator's renomination are former the Republican United States senatorial nomination. Opposing the Senator's renomination are former Governor Robert P. Bass of Peterboro and James H. Smith, former State Supreme Court Judge. Former Governor Bass appealed for election on the ground that his opponent failed to support the administration on several outstanding issues.

Robert C. Murchie, a Concord attorney, and Albert Noone of Peterboro are candidates for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Gov. John G. Winant, Republican, hopes to shatter a 43-year-old New Hampshire tradition by gaining another term. Since 1873 the State never has re-elected a Governor, but the present executive has expressed confidence that his record will bring victory over Hunter N. Spaulding of Rochester, his only opponent. Mayor Eaton D. Sargent of Nashua is opposed for the Democratic nomination.

Two "investigations" enlivened the last two weeks of the campaign. Excitement began when a group of private detectives, ostensibly conducting a prohibition survey, were in turn investigated by the Attorney-General's department on orders of Gov. Winant. It became known Sunday that the Good Government League of New York was conducting a separate campaign inquiry.

Senator Odie Opposed by Wet at Nevada Primary.

By the Associated Press.
RENO, Nev., Sept. 7.—Although Nevada is normally Democratic, the majority of voters here have registered as Republican for today's primary. Leaders of both parties declare this is due to the contest for the Republican senatorial nomination between Tasker L. Odie, incumbent, World Court advocate, and Mayor E. E. Roberts of Reno. World Court opponent and charged by his opponents with being opposed to the national prohibition law.

For the Democratic place, Raymond T. Baker, former Director of the Mint; Patrick McCarran, former Justice of the Nevada Supreme Court; C. H. McIntosh, former chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee, and Dr. W. H. Brennan of Bureau have been canvassing the State for months.

Gov. Hunt Seeks Nomination for Sixth Term in Arizona.

By the Associated Press.
PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 7.—In today's primary Gov. G. W. P. Hunt is seeking his sixth consecutive term in office and is opposed for the Democratic nomination by Ralph W. Wood, young Tucson publisher, and State Senator J. J. Cox.

Senator Ralph H. Cameron, who conducted a filibuster against the man-at-large, seeks the Democratic senatorial nomination against Charles H. Rutherford, Jerome attorney. Four candidates are in the race for Hayden's place.

ASSERTS PROSPERITY IN U. S. DEPENDS UPON HIGH WAGES

President of A. F. of L. Says a Result of Economic Adjustment Will Be Shorter Work Day.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—Federal prosperity now enjoyed in the United States is intimately associated with dependent upon high wages and a shortened work day for labor, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared at the Labor day celebration at the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition.

As the application of power and mechanical devices to production increases output, he said, workers would expect to share fairly and equitably.

"Confronted with the stern realities of present-day industrial conditions and the fact that many complex economic problems will arise within the future," Green continued, "thinking workers in all lines of industry turn to the organization of labor for guidance, protection and advice. They are conscious of the fact that their salvation lies in their economic strength and their collective action and influence."

"Our country must remain a high wage country. The living standards, which we have built up, will not permit a lowering of wages. The industrial supremacy of the United States must ever depend upon the efficiency and producing ability of American wage-earners rather than upon low wages or living standards."

"We can only retard our economic life to the constant increase in production of manufactured articles through a reduction in the hours of labor. A shorter work day is not only based upon sound economic reasons, but is justifiable from the humane point of view."

SAYS JESUITS WROTE RULES

ATTRIBUTED TO WASHINGTON

Charles Moore of Library of Congress Traces Etiquette Back to 1595.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—George Washington's "Rules of Civility" were composed originally by the Jesuits, declares Charles Moore, head of the manuscript division of the Library of Congress.

In some school exercises of Washington, written before he was 16 years old, were 18 pages of rules, from which sprang suggestions on behavior in company and conversation.

Moore in his book, which the Houghton Mifflin company is publishing, says the rules "were composed originally or compiled and published in France by the Jesuits about 1595. Translated into English by Francis Hawkins about 1646 they passed through no fewer than 11 editions down to 1872. From the Hawkins book, the 110 rules written by Washington were selected, simplified and arranged by some person at present unknown."

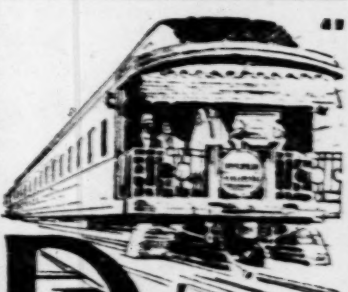

"One copy came into the hands of George Washington, who from it wrote out the manuscript that is among the Washington papers purchased from the family by Congress in 1834 and 1848 and held in the Department of State until 1902 when they were transferred to the Library of Congress."

MISSING WOMAN FOUND DEAD

Body of Florence Taylor of Belleville Discovered in Pond.

The body of Miss Florence Taylor, 39 years old, of 2924 Irene street, Belleville, was found in the shallow water of a pond three blocks from her home yesterday by her brother-in-law, Isaac Bailey, who instituted a search when she failed to return home last night.

Miss Taylor had been despondent since the death of her mother, who was fatally burned when her clothing caught fire four years ago, according to members of the family, and had spoken of ending her life. It was learned that she had questioned several boys yesterday concerning the depth of the pond.

Are You a Co-lonic?

A FAMOUS scientist discovered that a startlingly large percentage of Americans are Co-lonic! And yet most of them don't know it! They struggle on day after day, jaded and out of gear, never suspecting for a moment that they are victims of secret and regular poison!

Co-lonics, briefly identified, are people whose systems constantly absorb intestinal poison. Actual poison! Not the kind that destroys life—but the kind that produces constant exhaustion, irritability, and edgy nerves. The kind that kills ambition, wrecks health and makes life not worth the living!

Every single ounce of food you take into your system is potential poison! If none of it was eliminated, it could actually kill you in a few days! Partial elimination removes a sufficient amount to avert disaster—but leaves enough to turn an otherwise healthy person into a dull-eyed, listless Co-lonic—a prey to Blue Mondays, frequent colds, headaches, sallow skin, pimples and a host of resulting ailments.

But now—Nature herself comes in the rescue. A modern treatment for sluggish colons has been developed by a group of well-known scientists. It acts in a unique three-fold way: To promote quick, complete bowel action—to remove the toxins, and harmful bacteria from the colon—and to tone up the colon—so that it will act naturally without the aid of physics. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) the colonic corrective, is entirely composed of harmless vegetable ingredients, which act gently—never causing the discomfort of harsh purges and physics. And never forms a habit!

Your druggist has Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) in stock for immediate use.

FARM PROBLEM, LIKE TARIFF, IS SECTIONAL ONE

Secretary Jardine Tells Kansas Farmers Nearly Half of Wheat Raised in U. S. Is Eaten on Farms.

EQUALIZATION FEE USELESS EXPENSE

Would Benefit Grain Growers at Expense of Cattle Corn and Cotton Producers, He Says.

By DAVID LAWRENCE, A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Secretary Jardine of the Agricultural Department has at last played the administration trump card in fighting the movement represented by the McNary-Haugen bill plan. For a long time the administration has remained on the defensive while the Western organizations have piled up ammunition and played their big guns in Congress on the farm policies of the Coolidge regime.

Now Jardine (in a speech in Kansas) has disclosed an argument which challenges the farm groups to answer effectively and yet retain the support they have had from certain farm states. The Secretary draws attention to the fact that out of the $35,000,000 bushels of wheat produced about $12,000,000 is actually consumed by the farmer himself. Does the farmer wish to pass on to himself nearly half the extra cost of financing the McNary-Haugen plan? And would that amount be offset by any gains he would receive?

Useless Expense. The wheat farmer, of course, would profit by the higher price per bushel that he would receive for domestic wheat, but this does not take into account the plight of the corn farmer, the cattle farmer, the cotton farmer, the dairy farmer and all the other kinds of farmers who make up the great body of agricultural strength, economically and politically in America.

This, therefore is what the administration now asks the defenders of the McNary-Haugen plan to answer. The question really is: Do the wheat farmers wish to saddle the consumer—namely their brother farmers—with an extra expense for wheat consumption? If they do will the Senators and Representatives from those states which have cattle, dairy, cotton, corn and other farm products continue to support the McNary-Haugen plan?

The proponents of the plan have all along been endeavoring to win support from the farm groups other than wheat by offering to apply the same principle of an equalization fee to keep up domestic prices but the question then resolves itself into whether the added expense of consumable goods is offset by the higher revenue from the sale of products.

Similar to Tariff Problem. In many respects the problem is like the tariff. What one section of the country wants in the form of protection, another section protests is a high cost tacked on to consumable goods. By a system of compromises, tariff bills have been written, but the present agitation in the West against the McNary-Haugen bill is considered proof of what the difficulties are in writing a tariff that satisfies all sections.

Two Saved From Burning Ship Men Badly Burned, Are Landed at Philadelphia.

By the Associated Press. NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 7.—Two men were rescued from the burning four-master schooner, Albert W. Robinson, about 300 miles off the Virginia coast by the Jugoslav steamer, Izabran, according to a radio message received from the coast guard patrol ship, Cushing. The men, who are said to have been badly burned, were landed at Philadelphia.

Derailed Car Wrecks Station. Special to the Post-Dispatch. PARIS, Mo., Sept. 7.—When seven cars of a Wabash freight train left the tracks at Stoutsville yesterday, one car broke through the station wall and came to rest in the waiting room, damaging the building so it will have to be rebuilt. H. J. Otten, station master, escaped by rushing through a rear door. This is the third time in three years that derailed cars have wrecked the Stoutsville sta-

MAYOR APOLOGIZES TO BATHER

Regrets Arrest for Violation of Law of Common Sense. By the Associated Press. LAFAYETTE, N. J., Sept. 7.—Mayor Van Camp has apologized to Albert Roesch of Philadelphia, a summer resident, for causing Roesch's arrest for "violating the law of common sense and jeopardizing the lives of his rescuers." Roesch, in swimming, found himself unable to return through the heavy surf. James P. Neville, with two other men, put out in a boat. The boat was upset by the heavy seas but the men rescued Roesch. The Mayor ordered the town Marshal to arrest Roesch as warning to other bathers "foolish enough to go in rough seas."

Would-Be Suicide Hides Identity. Special to the Post-Dispatch. CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Sept. 7.—The woman who drank poison here last Friday still refuses to reveal her name and insists she hopes she will die. However, doctors say her chances of recovery are good. More than a dozen requests by mail for wire have been received by police from persons hunting missing relatives. The only reason the woman gives for taking poison is: "They haven't treated me right."

In JUDGING Oil Burners Consider these Points

LOOK first for a burner operating under these four laws that govern the perfect combustion of oil. 1. The oil must be atomized—not vaporized. 2. This atomized oil must be mixed with air enough to supply sufficient oxygen to insure perfect combustion. 3. This mixture of atomized oil and air must be burned in suspension. 4. It must burn in reflected heat—heat reflected from the fire brick lining of your heating plant fire-pot.

Nu-way is one of the few automatic oil burners operating under these four fundamental laws.

Then look for certain characteristics in the burner itself. Simplicity is of prime importance because the fewer the moving parts the less wear and the fewer opportunities for the mechanism to go wrong. Nu-way is the simplest burner that burns oil by the four essential laws.

Look to the ignition which in the Nu-way is positive and perfectly timed.

The Nu-way ignition flame must be on five seconds before the atomized oil enters the furnace.

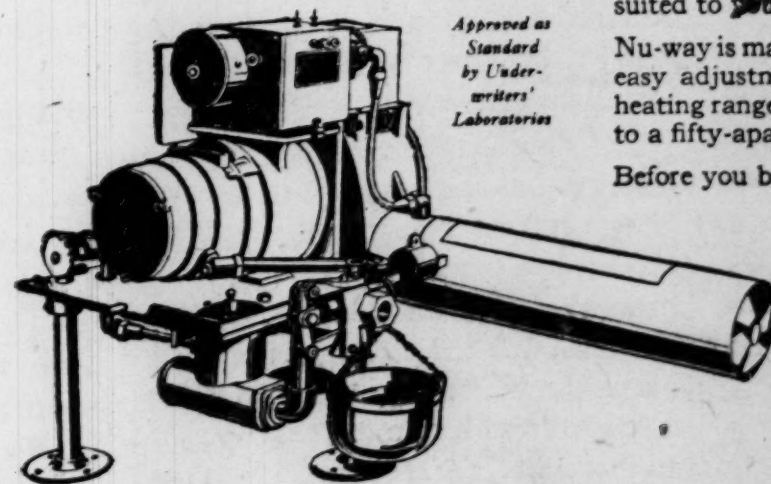

Consider the accessories—automatic controls, motor, fan, fuel feed, and so forth—so vital to your burner's dependable operation.

All these special devices on Nu-way are made by firms of nation-wide repute and standing.

Ask yourself, too, if the burner you are investigating is made in the size best suited to your heating requirements.

Nu-way is made in four sizes and, with the easy adjustments, the range of efficient heating ranges from a five-room bungalow to a fifty-apartment building.

Before you buy, see Nu-way.

Approved as Standard by Underwriters' Laboratories

The Cheaper Fuel

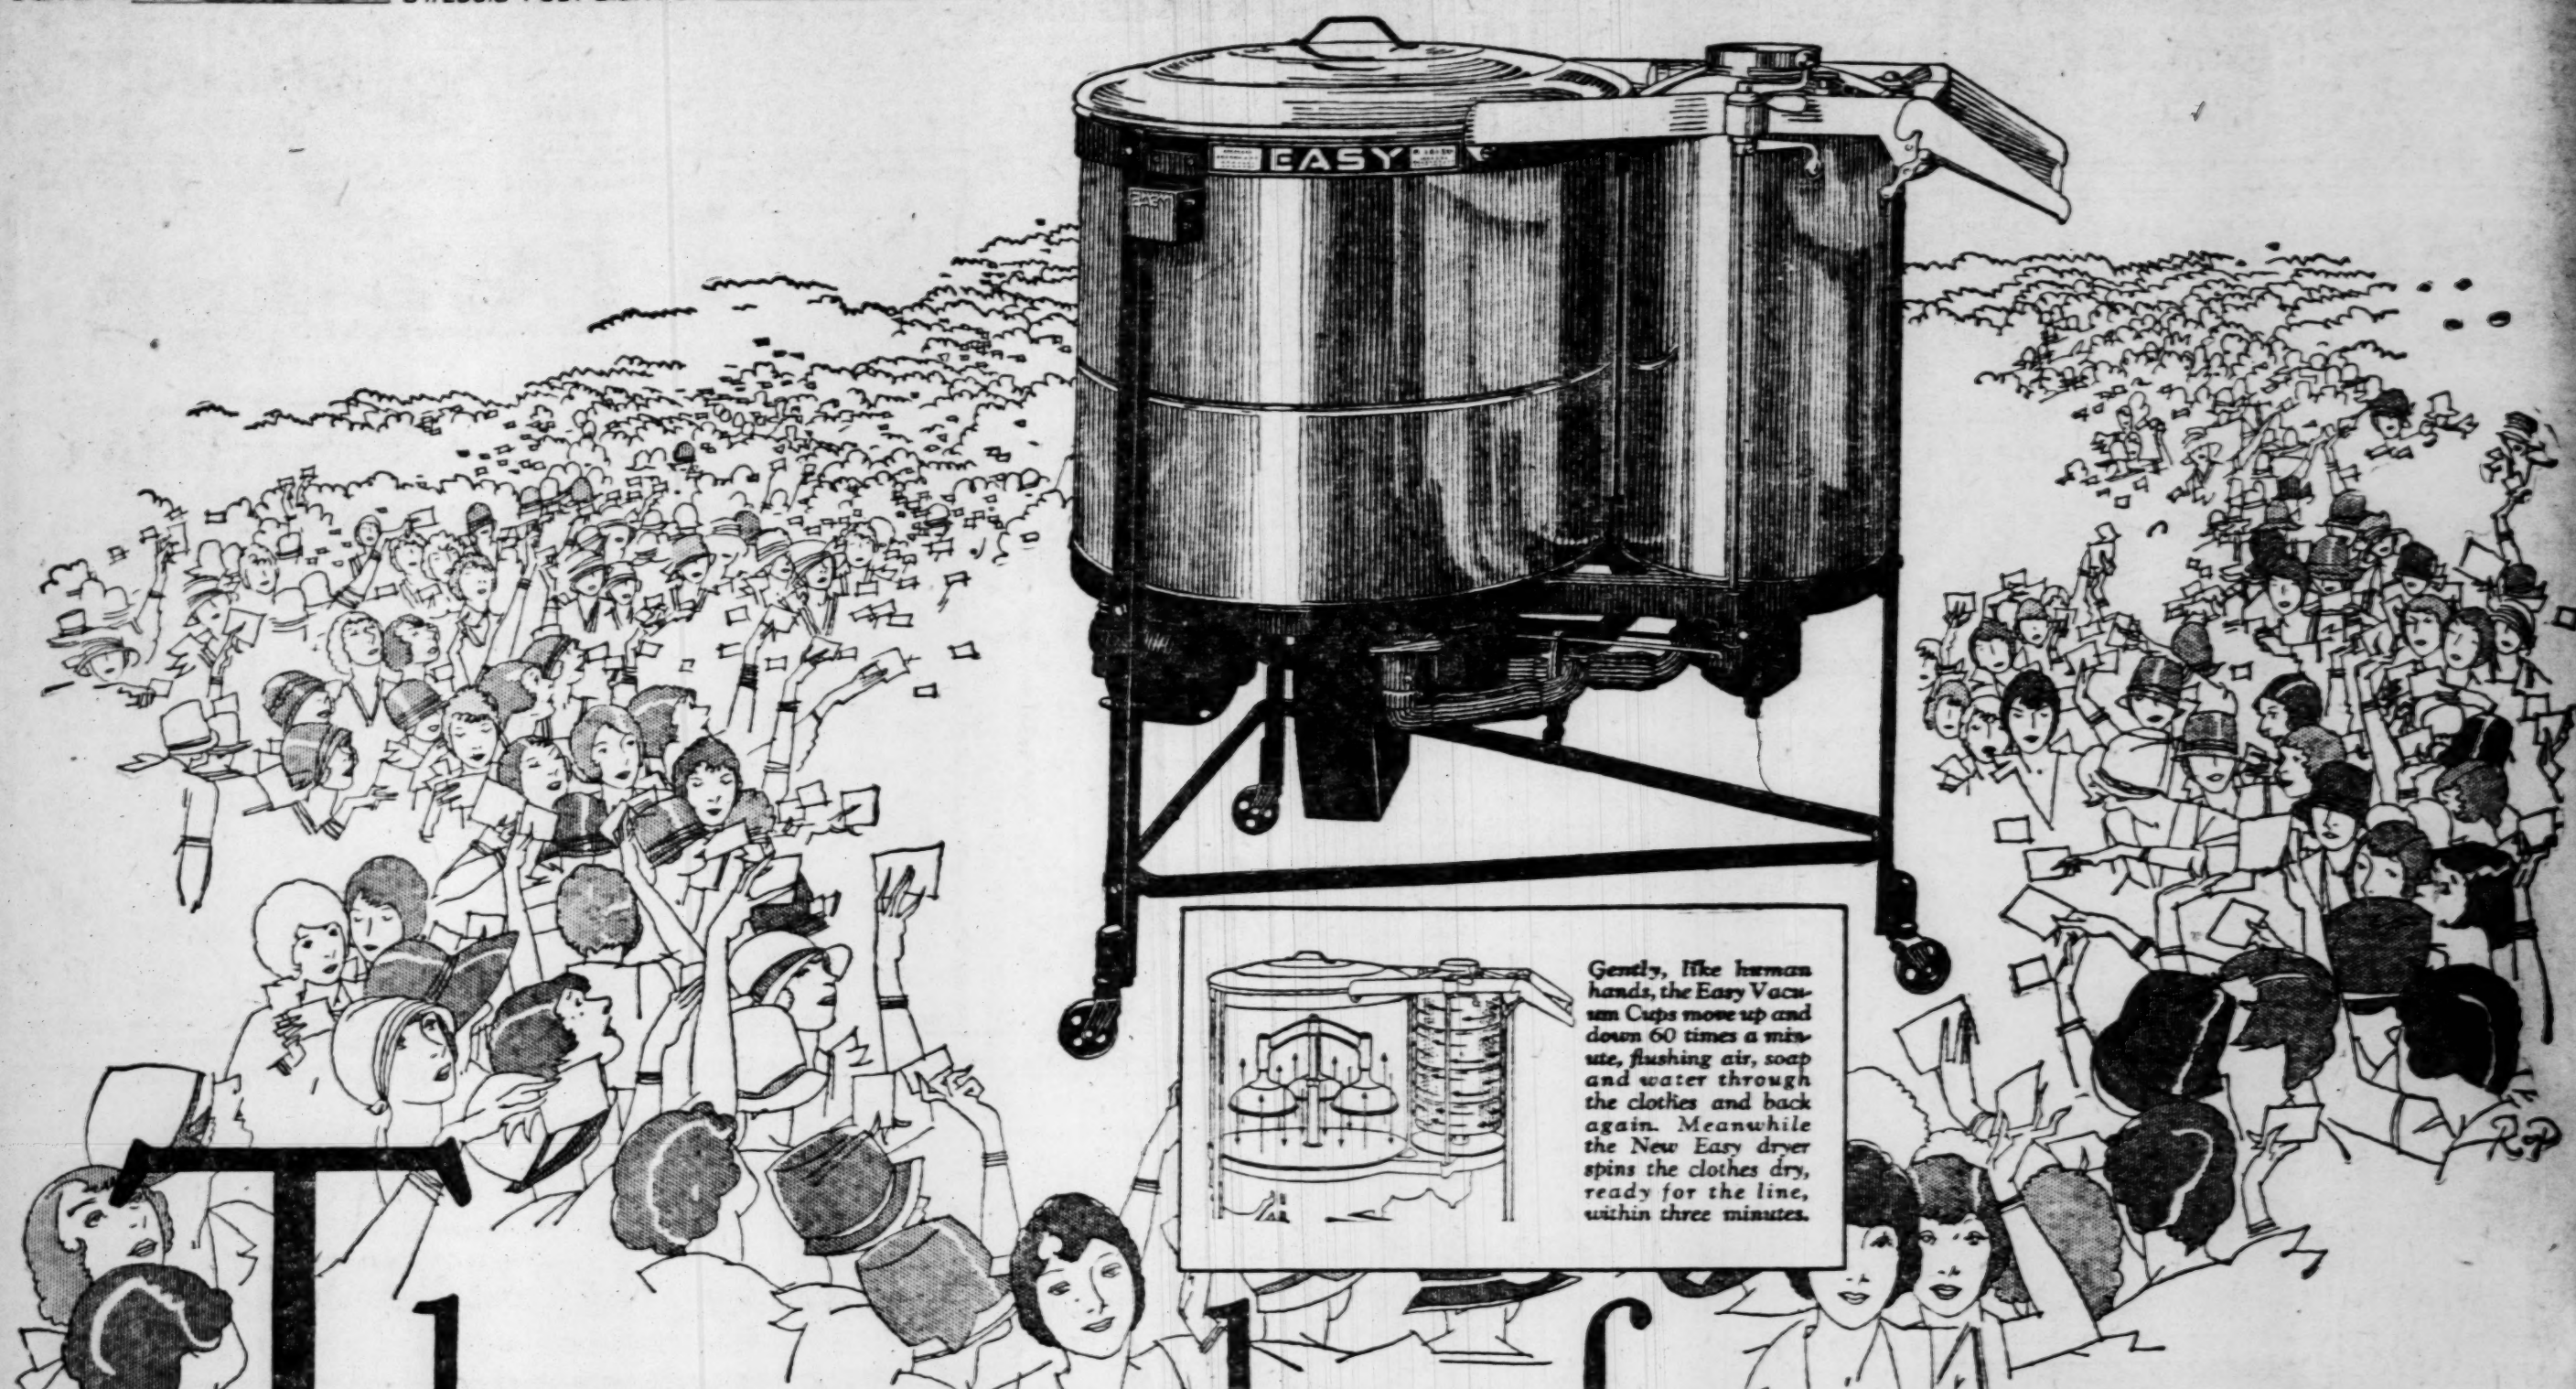

Nu-way burns oil selling for 2c to 2 1/2c less than lighter distillate recommended for other burners.

E. ST. LOUIS LIQUOR CASE DISPOSED OF AFTER FOUR YEARS

Prosecution One of Many in Federal Court Allowed to Drag in Judge English's Regime.

FORMER SALOON KEEPER DEFENDANT

He Pleads Guilty, Is Paroled From Year's Sentence in Jail and Given 6 Months to Raise $500 Fine.

E. C. Bradford, formerly a saloon keeper at 1301 State street, East St. Louis, who was a fugitive from justice from December, 1922, until last June 10, today pleaded guilty before Federal Judge Lindley at Danville, Ill., of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law.

He was sentenced to a year in jail and to pay a $500 fine, but he was allowed six months in which to pay the fine and was paroled from jail, on his representations that he was broke, had reformed, had a wife and infant to support, and had honest employment which he would lose if jailed.

The case against Bradford was one of a number in Federal Court at East St. Louis of which no disposition had been made until the unusual state of affairs was disclosed recently by Department of Justice agents, examining the court records in connection with impeachment proceedings pending against Federal Judge George Washington English in the United States Senate.

Member of Alleged Liquor Ring. Four years ago operatives of the intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Department began an investigation of an alleged liquor ring in which enforcement officers were rumored to be involved. As a result, warrants charging conspiracy were issued against Bradford and six others. Indictments were returned against the seven in September, 1923.

Lester Iglehart of East St. Louis, one of those indicted, made a statement to the investigators that he was paid $25 weekly for delivering whiskey to East St. Louis saloon keepers, who had placed their orders with John Marsh, a liquor salesman even before prohibition. Iglehart said he obtained the whiskey at the farm of Ted Mathews near Collinsville. A raid on this firm netted more than 700 gallons of liquor.

Bradford was riding one day with Iglehart, when the latter's automobile, containing liquor, was wrecked. Iglehart said he obtained the whiskey at the farm of Ted Mathews near Collinsville. A raid on this firm netted more than 700 gallons of liquor.

Two Convicted of Conspiracy. Marsh and Mathews were found guilty of conspiracy and sentenced to a year in jail and to pay a $1000 fine. They appealed, but the convictions were affirmed. Charges were dismissed against Iglehart, George Rabudo, Fred Mazzola and August Capizzo.

In a statement to the court today, Bradford said he fled from East St. Louis when he was indicted. He had $7000 and he went to California, then to Florida.

"What did you do there?" asked Judge Lindley.

"I did nothing—lived like a gentleman," was the reply.

Now Traveling Salesman. When his money ran out, Bradford returned to East St. Louis, was arrested and released on bond. He is now employed, he said, as traveling salesman for a refrigerator factory at Kokomo, Ind.

Bradford asserted he had not violated the liquor law since his indictment. Judge Lindley warned him that if he did break the law, his parole would be revoked and he would be jailed.

INTER-CITY BEAUTY PAGEANT

70 Young Women to Participate in Event at Atlantic City.

By the Associated Press. ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 7.—"Miss America" of 1925 was on hand today to share in selecting her successor from the 1926 crop of 73 peaches in the intercity beauty pageant. Miss Fay LaPlante, winner of the crown last year, arrived last night, as did Miss Australia, Beryl Mills, Miss Brigantine Beach, Miss Elmira, N. Y., and Miss Wildwood Gables. Thirty-three contestants, with their chaperons, were in Philadelphia last night, but remained there to wait for the 37 other beauties, in order to arrive with them on the "Beauty Special" today.

Samuel P. Leeds, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, was named engineer of the trainload of pulchritude, whose arrival to the accompaniment of booming guns, bands playing the "Star-Spangled Banner" and a rousing reception was fixed as the formal opening of pageant week. For the first time, a former year's Miss America is helping in the entertainment of the visiting beauties, and her share today consisted in raising a flag at noon at the court of honor on the boardwalk, to symbolize the opening of the pageant.

German Klan Fined for Slander. By the Associated Press. BERLIN, Sept. 7.—The Knights of the Fiery Cross, as the German Ku Klux Klan is called, has received a number of setbacks in its campaign to establish a militant antisemitic, anti-Catholic and anti-Socialist organization along the lines of its American namesake. Former Minister of Posts and Telegraphs Giesbert has won a slander suit against the Grand Knights of the Leipzig Klan, who caricatured Giesbert, a Catholic, in the Klan weekly. The knights were fined 200 marks each.

ILLINOIS LABOR HEAD CRITICISES 1920 DEFLATION

President Walker Calls Act
'Greatest Economic Blunder' in Labor Day Address at Midwest Fair.

SUPPORTS PLAN TO FIX MONEY VALUES

Opposes Child Labor—Calls Illinois 'Open Shops' Failures—Reviews Year of Industry in State.

The status of labor in the great mining and industrial districts of Illinois was sketched—with considerable reference to the postwar deflation begun in 1920—by J. H. Walker, president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, at a joint Labor day celebration of East St. Louis, Edwardsville and Collinsville unions yesterday the closing day of the Midwest Fair at Fairmont Park.

"The average wage of the Illinois worker is just a little higher than it ever has been," he declared, "but industry has not yet recovered from the greatest economic blunder of all time—the deflation that was started in 1920 in the Senate of the United States, and was imposed on industry by the banking interests of Wall Street and the Federal Reserve System of the Nation."

Cursed Great Loss.
"Loans were called which compelled the farmer to put his crops on the market for any price he could get to pay off the mortgage and save his farm. In 1,500,000 cases, he was unable to save it.
Deflation resulted in immense loss to the farmer and caused a reduction in the price of farm commodities, which made it almost impossible for him to make a living working on the farm."

"The calling of loans and the refusal to make any others shut down many modern industries and threw millions of workers out of employment, thus making it impossible for the wage earners to buy the farmers' products, or for either one of them to give employment or business to the professional or business man at satisfactory prices."

Reaching Bottom of Pit.
"We are slowly reaching the bottom of the pit that was dug for humanity in that crude and cruel act. An effort to stabilize the dollar, to prevent either expansion or contraction of it, is under way to deter a few immensely wealthy men and corporations from manipulating the United States' commercial and industrial life-blood in order to take exorbitant profits in expansion and in deflation, turn their money into bonds and mortgages which increase immensely in value."

"While attending a conference at the University of Illinois, I heard a former president of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce say that the business course taught in that school was being objected to by the hard-headed business man of our State. He said it took six years for a student to get over the idealism and altruism taught in that course and to reconcile himself to the practical business methods of today."

Calls 'Open Shop' a Failure.
Walker cited statistics that 25-300 a year were killed in industries in the United States but declared 99 per cent of employers could not be induced to take part in accident prevention. He commended action to end child labor.

"The fight for the so-called open shop in Chicago," he said, reviewing the year "resulted in the building trades increasing their membership. That is also true of the general movement in St. Louis. In Murphyboro, it was a magnificent failure. In Centralia, the battle is still on, with prospects bright for the trade unionists."

Industrial Captains Attacked.
An attack upon captains of industry as "the real cause of the present unrest," a plea for union-ism's fight for labor and remarks about Frank L. Smith of Illinois (United States senatorial candidate) in connection with the recent Pennsylvania and Illinois primaries featured a Labor day address at Belleville yesterday by Samuel Pascoe, president of the Kentucky district of the United Mine Workers of America.

Attacking Secretary Mellon for his stand on mine questions, Pascoe said: "If we have greedy captains of industry in the Cabinet of our country, who use that high office for personal gain, personal power and greed, what can the American people expect?"

Pascoe classed the recent primary elections of Pennsylvania and Illinois as "a shame and a disgrace," and classed Smith with Vane and Pepper as "unfit to hold such distinguished office" (United States Senator).

Train Kills Brookfield Farmer.
Special to the Post-Dispatch, Sept. 6.—
The body of Frank Anderson, farmer, 44 years old, was found on the depot platform at Easton by a telegraph operator who opened the station this morning. Anderson evidently had been struck by a train during the night.

LAWYER IS FREED OF COMPLICITY IN ROBBERY OF BANK

Boonville Justice Dismisses Case Against Sedalia Man in Pleasant Grove Bank Theft.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOONVILLE, Mo., Sept. 7.—Claude Wilkerson, Sedalia attorney, was freed of a charge of complicity in the $5400 robbery of the Pleasant Grove bank, July 25, when Justice of the Peace Gordon dismissed the case this afternoon at the conclusion of the State's case in a preliminary hearing.

Justice Gordon, who is 56 years old and hard of hearing, vehemently criticized Prosecuting Attorney Windsor for offering John Wolford, confessed bank robber, and two associates, as witnesses against the attorney. Wolford had testified that Wilkerson helped plan the holdup and accepted the loot as his fees for defending the robbers in another case.

Refuses to Believe Witness. “There isn't much use going any further,” the aged Justice said when the State rested. “We can't accept the statement of this criminal (Wilkerson). His kind of people can't be believed under oath. I dismiss the case.”

Early in the trial, the Justice had deserted the bench, taking a seat at the counsel table, with his hands cupped behind his ears to hear better. He once interrupted Wolford's testimony, remarking: “He ought to be in the penitentiary; I don't see why you put him on the stand.” His closing remarks were cheered by the audience, largely from Sedalia.

Prosecutor Windsor announced he would present the case to the grand jury and continue his effort to prosecute Wilkerson.

Wolford, on the stand, repudiated a confession he signed when Wilkerson was his attorney, declaring the attorney persuaded him to name innocent persons in order to protect himself. His testimony was supported by his wife, Helen, and by Mrs. Grace Craw, whom he named in the original confession and who has been acquitted.

Planned in Wilkerson Home. The robbery was planned at Wilkerson's home, with the attorney present, Wolford said. After the holdup, the four robbers hid the loot in an abandoned shack near Sedalia and met that evening at Wilkerson's home, he said.

Wilkerson named two men who have not been apprehended, and James Lunsford, as his associates. They argued, he testified, about whether to get the loot that evening or some other day and Wilkerson remarked, “It don't make any difference to me.”

“Finally we drove out and got it,” Wolford testified. “We used Wilkerson's machine. We brought the stuff up to Wilkerson's bedroom and gave it to him there. There were $3300 in registered Liberty Bonds that I turned in his kitchen stove. He kept the rest for defending us in the bank robbery at Deep Water, Mo.”

The negotiable loot was described as $2776 cash, $1800 in Liberty Bonds, and $1000 worth of jewelry.

Talked to Attorney, Woman Says. Mrs. Craw, with whom the Wolfords lived, testified that she talked to Wilkerson about the robbery after it was committed. “You will have to admit it was a smooth deal,” Wilkerson declared, according to the woman. Mrs. Wolford related that she drove Wolford to the lawyer's home twice before the robbery and Mrs. Craw asserted she heard the men talk about the plans on several occasions.

Wilkerson's arrest was brought about by Wilkerson, who acting as his attorney, approached Windsor with a proposition whereby Wolford would testify against his associates if let off with a three-year sentence. Wolford today declared he implicated Mrs. Craw to shield Wilkerson, using her name when he had the lawyer in mind.

Arrest Called Frameup. Wilkerson denies the charge and asserts his arrest last Thursday is the result of a frameup because of his success in defending persons charged with major crimes, and as a result of bitter feeling against him by some of the state's witnesses and Prosecuting Attorney Windsor himself.

Wilkerson and Windsor came to blows here about six months ago during trial of a criminal case. Wilkerson assisted in the defense of Emil Fricker, Madison County, Ill., farmer, who was hanged at Edwardsville last spring, for the murder of one of the husbands of his dairy maid, with whom he was infatuated. Wilkerson also was attorney for James Lunsford, who was tried and acquitted in Madison County Circuit Court at Edwardsville of participating in the robbery of a bank at Highland, Ill., more than two years ago.

He is under $2500 bond. Wilkerson has been at liberty under $5000 bond.

The Cooper County Circuit Court room, which has a seating capacity of more than 200, was comfortably filled 20 minutes before the hearing started. Most of the spectators were from Sedalia, about 40 miles from here.

GREAT BRITAIN CAN PAY DEBTS, EXPERT SAYS

Hartley Withers, Economist, Warns Against Sentimentality About War Obligations.

DOUBTS VALUE OF CANCELLATION

Admits It May Come, but Urges Nations to Practice the Upbuilding Virtue of Saving.

THIS is another in the series of articles by Mr. Bell on the financial situation of Europe.
By EDWARD PRICE BELL,
Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News.
(Copyright, 1926.)

LONDON, England, Aug. 28.—
"Let us not be in too great a hurry to cancel debts," said Hartley Withers, one of Great Britain's best-known economic writers, author of many books on industry and finance and formerly editor of the Economist. Withers, aged 59, is a strong-featured, gray-haired man with a pleasant, friendly stare and a humanity in his keenly observant eyes.

He does not take economists too seriously; he knows them too well.
Withers does not take anybody or anything too seriously, though he is by no means excessively given to humor. That he is not wholly above it, however, is indicated by the fact that recently he came to London from his Essex home to buy a set of false whiskers to help him play the part of Barnum at a dinner party.

Economists, according to Withers, are never consistent in anything but disagreement. They cannot get together on even a definition of capital. Turgot, who had a hard time at defining capital, said it meant "values accumulated."
The mode of any kind exchangeable for other goods. Another school of thought was capital; he could swap them for white mice. His theory, which he had eaten, had been his character as capital in the process of digestion and assimilation.

Not that Turgot condemned the sins of capitalism. Doubtless they did the boy good. But cherries assumed could not be called capital.
John Stuart Mill, Withers will tell you, narrowed the definition to the sense of wealth set aside to increase production. Wealth was the equipment and tools of industry in the widest sense of the word, including agriculture and transport.

War Destroyed Capital.

Later economists have shown a tendency to revert to the wider application of the word, one of those Dr. Anderson of American history that a "dollar is capital." Withers prefers the narrow conception of Mill that capital means the equipment and tools of industry, because it is only by their possession that the wealth of mankind is not only increased, but present enjoyment, but enhances the future output of the goods necessary for his existence.

"Yes," says Withers, "the war destroyed capital. It destroyed ships and ships, which embody capital, and which is capital essentially.
But the war, apart from this disturbance by land and sea, left effective capital pretty well untouched throughout the earth."

Withers is a great believer in the capacity of man to rebuild his ruined fortunes. "If I have been stricken financially," he says, "I shall see the Essex thinker, smiling."
"Telephones are not natural wealth. Financial telephones mistake money for capital. Money, as such, is not capital in any productive sense. Money can be wasted.
Money was wasted in the war. Boys can eat too many cherries. If hundreds of millions from 1914 to 1918 went into munitions that vanished as smoke and scattered steel, so would chances of potential wealth have ended in unproductive extrinsurance had there been no war."

Romance in wealth production?
There is romance in everything.
Poetry and prose march arm-in-arm on the same road, crossing the same bridges, skirting the same hills and forests, thrilled by the same streams and flowers. Wealth production, in the sense of capital in the human loyalty and worth invested, is poetry if you think of it as the cold-blooded economist thinks of it—it is simple, it is obvious, it is dull. To produce capital you must labor and you must save.

As to Cancellation.

"Let us not be too sentimental about the war debts," says Withers.
"We might cancel them all today. That is the time of extreme international confusion and antagonism. Peoples draw deep resentments from their morbid ignorance.
Debt cancellation properly will mark the completed convalescence
of 'shell-shocked mankind.'"

OIL EXPERTS NOT ALARMED OVER SHORTAGE OF SUPPLY

Federal Conservation Report Held to Apply Only to Restricted Area, Not Including Shales.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The Federal Oil Conservation's Board's report that the country has only a six-year supply of oil in the proved fields is no cause for alarm, George H. Jones, chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, says.
Jones declares the report "can only have reference to a certain definite area," and he doubts "whether it can refer to wells that are even working at the present time." He believes future oil problems will be met with new and better processes, deeper digging and discovery of new sources.

Oil shale in Colorado and Utah will yield from 10 to 30 times as much oil as this country has used to date, according to Ralph H. Mc-Kee, professor of chemical engineering at the University of Pennsylvania. McKee's department is said to have carried on more extensive researches into oil shale possibilities than any other group in the world.
"The product we get from this shale is essentially the same as well petroleum," he said. "We get gasoline from it which we can not tell from the gasoline obtained from well petroleum."

BONES OF SOLDIER KILLED IN WARS OF THE ROSES FOUND

Discovery at Beaulieu Abbey, England, Discloses Early Use of Wooden Coffins.

By the Associated Press.
BEAULIEU, England, Sept. 7.— Three coffins, one of which contains the skeleton of a soldier killed 160 years ago in the Wars of the Roses (1455-85 A. D.) have been uncovered at Beaulieu Abbey in the heart of New Forest.
The coffin was made of oak. The discovery astonished archaeological experts since it was not generally known that wooden coffins were used as early as the fifteenth century.
Although the records of the Abbey have been destroyed long since, it is known that it was founded by King John in a moment of penitence.
Henry VIII destroyed the abbey in 1539.

It is a part of what we earn.
This is the one great productive habit of mankind. It is the only habit that creates capital. It is the only habit that makes modern industry possible. So far as we have lost soundness of limb, health, energy, ambition, by the war, we are losers indeed, but cancellation of debts will not give us back these.
Raising transactions in a physical or biological restoratives.
What, then, does Withers think about the war debts?

He thinks, if necessary, they can be paid. He thinks Great Britain, in particular, can pay her debt to the United States; it is all a matter of working and saving and expanding industry and finding markets for the products of such industry. He realizes, of course, that the more of the world's markets Great Britain occupies, the less there will be for others, but he anticipates, as I understand him, markets enough for all, even with the debts uncanceled. His vision is that of an ultimate world consumption immensely larger than anything hitherto known.

Goods for goods, in the long run, represent the only practicable method of payment from person to person or nation to nation, in Withers view. But he thinks Great Britain can pay her debt to the United States by transferring them to the United States, tariff or no tariff. It may be a difficult process. It undoubtedly will take time. But it can be done. And Great Britain will not collapse under the load. In the end, as Withers sees the future, British citizens will have both a moral and a material reward from converting their character, intelligence and labor into high production.

"If we cannot survive with the American debt uncanceled," said he,
"it is certain we cannot survive by virtue of that debt's cancellation." It is not going either way, it is up or to break us. It is not inconceivable. It would be a heavy last straw, if a last straw, on the camels' back. But the camel's back, is equal to a good many straws yet.
For the present we must think of the debt as a burden that must be thought of how to adapt our psychology and our industrial organization to our heavier burdens."

Political boundaries are dim things in Withers' economic philosophy. If interest on a war debt goes from Great Britain to America, it is not going either way, it is lost proportionately. Withers thinks not. Americans worked, saved and invested, thus warranting the assumption that they will save and invest again. Whoever works, saves and invests augments production and adds to the prosperity of all peoples. Prosperity is not and cannot be confined within political frontiers. It spills over. It spreads.
It irrigates the world.

When the cancellation of war debts comes, it comes to all. Withers does not doubt it may come—he is of opinion that it should be made, not to jeopardize, but to fortify, international peace and the consequent promise of comparative human happiness in the future. There are times of extreme international confusion and antagonism. Peoples draw deep resentments from their morbid ignorance.
Debt cancellation properly will mark the completed convalescence
of "shell-shocked mankind."

MEXICAN BISHOPS SEEK RETURN OF CHURCH PROPERTY

Petition Presented to Congress Asks That Title to Holdings, Taken in 1857
Be Restored.

THINK MASS OF PEOPLE WITH THEM

Prelates Also to Circulate Petitions Which They Hope Will Force Legislation.

By ARTHUR CONSTANTINE,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
Copyright, 1926, by the Post-Dispatch Publishing Co., New York World and Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 4.—The petition of the Catholic Episcopate for a change in the religious laws of Mexico was handed today to Deputies in Congress from the State of Puebla. They will present it to the Secretary of the Chamber, who at some future session will read it to the assembled Deputies.

The petition specifies proposed amendments to the Constitution of 1917. The episcopate also will issue a call to the faithful to deluge Congress with petitions, to which they hope to obtain 2,000,000 names.

These petitions, they expect, will force the measures through the pro-Calles Congress.
A political struggle involving the entire nation is expected to result from the demand of the clergy, who take it for granted that they have 90 per cent of the population back of them.

"We come to demand," says the preamble of the church project, "in the name of the Catholic people of Mexico, derogation of certain provisions of the Constitution in force, at the present time and reform of others for the patriotic purpose of putting an end to actual religious conflict and obtaining for Catholics of Mexico the liberty of their church. Thus will the Constitution be made of concord and justice, which is the only hand declared that the State ignores the religious reality of our country, while on the other hand it limits and organizes it in slavery."

What Prelates Demand.
The hierarchy demands liberty of worship, education, speech and association and the right to hold property. Under the reform laws of 1857 the Federal Government laid title to all church property.
The Episcopate demands that this be returned.

The Episcopate emphasizes that "we demand liberty not only for ourselves, but for all the religious."
The preamble declares the reform will make for peace, lift the nation to a higher moral plane and realize the aspirations of the majority for democratic government.
It quotes the motto of the State of South Dakota: "Under the law of God the people rule."

The preamble concludes with this paragraph:
"The President of the United States, in his letter to the Cardinal legate from the Pope to the Executive Conference in Chicago, uttered these words, which are worth remembering on this occasion: 'If our people believe in their Constitution it is because our institutions are in accord with our religious beliefs.'"

TROOPS MOVED; ATHENS UNEASY

Official Announcement Admits Lack of Discipline in Army.

By the Associated Press.
ATHENS, Greece, Sept. 7.— "Special military measures have been ordered owing to grave lack of discipline on the part of the Republican Guard," was the official announcement issued after an unexplained move yesterday by the Republican Guard, which suddenly marched from the suburb of Aghia Parastasi. Infantry and cavalry patrols followed the men, whose officers gave unsatisfactory reasons for their having left the barracks

Friedrich Wilhelm Operates Plane.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—Former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm of Germany has become an aviator. During a flight of the well known aviator Udet, at an aviation exhibit yesterday, the former Prince expressed a desire to take control of his plane. He was able to fly the plane alone for a few minutes, even making a few easy curves. The former Prince was so enthusiastic that he contemplated taking a course of training as an aviator.

REED DECLARES FOR REPEAL OF PROHIBITION AMENDMENT; ANNOUNCES THAT HE WILL NOT AGAIN RUN FOR THE SENATE

He Favors Referendum, but Meantime Would Have Congress Raise Limit of Alcoholic Content of Beer and Wine.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent, of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 7.—
There was no equivocation or side-stepping in a statement which Senator James A. Reed made to a Post-Dispatch correspondent here yesterday on the prohibition question.

In his recent letter to Mrs. Nelle
G. Burger, head of the State W. C.
T. U., opposing the proposal to repeal the State dry code, the Senator went vigorously on record against "the unnatural and extreme prohibitory laws which deface our statute books," but did not directly mention the Eighteenth Amendment. The omission led to the criticism, in some quarters, that Reed had deemed it expedient to leave a loophole in that statement. It was said that he was performing in the orthodox manner of presidential candidates.

Is for Repeal of Amendment.
In talking with the Post-Dispatch representative, Reed left no doubt as to his position. He is for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. That, as he sees the problem, is the goal toward which the friends of states' rights and of true temperance should drive.

Reed also believes that a considerable measure of relief from conditions that he terms "intolerable" could be obtained through modification of the Volstead Act.
This view was brought out in reply to a question calling attention to the tremendous difficulties in the way of the repeal of all amendment and asking what palliative measure, within the terms of the amendment, could be adopted.

There was no dodging of this question, either. The Senator declared that by a simple amendment to the Volstead Act, so as to make it applicable to liquor "intoxicating in fact," Congress could legalize the sale of mild beer and mild wine. His statement made it clear that he favored such a change in the law.

Senator in Fighting Trim.

Reed was in fine physical trim after his vacation in Minnesota. As usual, his ability to exorcise the political enemy and to set out his policy in forceful and pictureque phrase was hitting on all cylinders. The interview made up a comprehensive statement on prohibition, the tariff and other outstanding national issues. If it is his platform for the coming year, it is a fair assumption that Reed is ruling the presidency, then this is his platform.

For the first time in public, Reed made the unqualified announcement that he will not again run for the Senate. His term will expire in March, 1929. He will then have served 18 years, three full terms in the Senate. He would not imagine a condition that would make him run for the Senate again, he said, with his positive assertion on this point.

He added that he expected to settle down in Kansas City and devote his whole attention to his law practice.

Says He Didn't Start Boom.

Questioned about the widespread boom to make him the Democratic presidential nominee in 1928, the Senator replied merely:
"I didn't start it."

He smiled. One was at liberty to interpret the words and to smile in any way one pleased.
On no other question was Reed reticent. He said that he expected to take his customary part—adding that this meant an active part—in this year's campaign.

He probably would accept an invitation to address the Democratic platform convention in Jefferson City on Sept. 14. He expected, he added, to make other speeches in Missouri and to go into other states to which he had been invited. He named Massachusetts and Ohio as two of the states in which he had given tentative promises to speak.

Former Senator David I. Walsh, who stood with Reed in the fight against the League of Nations, is the Democratic senatorial candidate opposing the incumbent, Senator William M. Butler, in Massachusetts. The fight in Ohio is between former Senator Atlee Pomer-ene, Democrat, a liberal on the wet-and-dry question, and Senator Frank B. Willis, Republican, a thick-and-thin supporter of the Anti-Saloon League.

Big Issue Is Decentralization.

Reed swung into his discussion of prohibition by way of an assault on centralized, bureaucratic government.
"One of the great issues of the day," he said, "is the need of decentralization of the Government and the return to the States of the control of their local affairs."
"A great deal of that can be accomplished by the repeal of Federal statutes that ought never to have been passed. But it cannot be fully accomplished without an amendment to the Constitution re-

SENATOR JAMES A. REED.

pealing the Eighteenth Amendment and permitting each State once more to establish and maintain its own police regulations.
"Nothing could be more ridiculous than to say that the States can be trusted and shall have sole jurisdiction to punish highway robbery, larceny, arson, murder and all sorts of crime, but that they cannot be trusted to regulate the manufacture or sale of a glass of beer or wine.

Wants Vote on Amendment.

"As the law stands today, if a United States Marshal were to see a bootlegger sell a citizen a bottle of beer and then murder the citizen in cold blood, he could arrest the bootlegger and take him before a Federal Court to be tried for selling beer, but he could not take him to a Federal Court and have him tried there for the murder. He could arrest him for the murder—as could any other citizen—but the trial would have to be in the State courts.

"I am unqualifiedly in favor of permitting the people of the United States to have the opportunity of voting on the Eighteenth Amendment."

"I believe each State can handle the liquor question for itself better than it can be handled at Washington.
"One thing is certain—present conditions are intolerable. Before prohibition there were between 500 and 600 licensed distilleries in the United States. There were, of course, a few, but only a very few moonshine plants, and the officers were able to deal with them effectively.

Quotes Andrews' Testimony.

"Prohibition Director Andrews testified (at the senatorial hearings on prohibition) from the record that in 12 months' time the prohibition department had seized 72-600 stills, and that this probably did not represent more than one in 10 of the stills actually in existence.
That means, according to our enforcement, that there were in existence during that 12 months 726,000 stills.

"These figures were so appalling and startling when they were quoted by Senator Bruce to the investigating committee that I felt compelled to have made the mistake of saying 72,600 when he means 726,000.
But Andrews took the stand and under oath produced the record sustaining the figure of 726,000.

"Moreover, Andrews did not include that these figures did not include the apparatus used in the manufacture of beer, and that they included only to a very limited degree apparatus used in the making of whisky which was not being made to be sold."

Lawlessness in the Home.

"Everybody knows that from five to 10 times as many people are engaged in making beer as are engaged in making whisky. The spectacle is thus presented of thousands of homes in the United States where the law is being deliberately violated—where liquor is being made in the presence of the wife and children and all are thus trained to violate the law of the land.

"That is an unnatural and un-healthful condition, full of danger to the Republic.
"Besides this, the testimony showed that probably not more than five per cent of the liquor smuggled into this country had been actually seized, so we have the spectacle of our country infested with smugglers, bootleggers and lawbreakers.
"The testimony showed that the prohibition department reeked with corruption.

Urges Decentralization and Return to Local Self- Government — Blames High Tariff Wall for Farmer's Plight.

right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience and to be free from condemnation because of his race or creed. This was one of the great tenets inculcated by Thomas Jefferson.

"Every organization or movement calculated to circumscribe these great fundamental rights is at war with the spirit of the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States and the creed of democracy." Tariff Hits Farmer, Reed Says.
 Reed came then to the tariff, making it plain that he regarded this as one of the vital issues before the people.

"Springing from these same sources," he said, "is the doctrine that all forms of special privilege and monopoly are violative of the spirit of our institutions. We have violated this principle many times, and always to our detriment."
 "A notable instance is the so-called protective tariff, the bitter fruits of which are now being garnered by the farmers.

"The farmer at last is beginning to realize that you cannot create huge profits for manufacturers without creating high prices for the people to pay. He is beginning to see that he must sell his surplus in Europe, and that the level of the European market fixes the level for his products in the domestic market."

Farm Depression Inevitable.

Reed then contrasted the position of the farmer with that of the manufacturer, who is able to boost prices behind the high tariff wall. He declared the inevitable result of this was "a depression of the entire farming industry," adding that the manufacturer were subjected to the same handicap as the farmer there would be a wholesale closing of factories and "a wall would be put up of new England President."

"The condition in which the farmer has been placed," he continued, "is a general way similar to that which has been adopted in the law and temperance of habit among the people.
 "Such a condition as this ought to alarm every good citizen and ought to appeal to the most intense prohibitionist—clerical or lay—for a change."

Condition Cries for a Change.

"It is not a question of what individuals may desire. The question is what plan can be adopted which will best promote respect for the law and temperance of habit among the people.
 "My own judgment is that some plan in a general way similar to that being adopted in Canada is the proper solution."

The Senator was asked what could be done within the Eighteenth Amendment to lessen the evils he described.
 He replied:

"The Volstead act makes it a crime to sell any liquor containing more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol. Of course, that is far below the intoxicating point. But termilk contains a good deal more alcohol than that. The sole authority of the Federal Government to legislate on the subject is found in the Eighteenth Amendment.
 That authority is to prohibit the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating liquors. Congress declared that every beverage containing more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol was intoxicating. The courts sustained the law on the theory that if Congress said a thing was intoxicating that was in fact not intoxicating, the courts nevertheless should not interfere. Those very decisions establish the right of Congress to determine what is intoxicating."

Congress Has Power to Decide.

"Congress can, therefore, declare that any beverage which is not in fact intoxicating can be legally sold. That, of course, would give the people mild wine and beer.
 "Congress might go further and declare a liquor not containing which is in fact intoxicating. That

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Will It Be a Mandate?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I HAVE noted the attitude of the Post-Dispatch on the prohibition question in the past with admiration, but in view of your editorial of Sept. 3 last, I would like to ask just how you would have the people of Missouri express themselves in the Volsteadism vote.

If proposition No. 4 is defeated at the polls in November it will be heralded from ocean to ocean as a victory for Volsteadism and will go far in influencing our representatives in Congress in their future actions on a modification of the nefarious Volstead law.

There is no thinking person in Missouri who believes that the primary was a referendum on the Volstead law. Capt. Clayton to the contrary notwithstanding, Hawes and Williams won on their general fitness and personalities and not on whether they were for or against Volsteadism.

When the people have a chance to express themselves on the prohibition question in the only way the State law permits, why muddy the water?

Choice of Operas.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
TODAY I noticed in your Letters From the People column a very interesting contribution signed "Forward St. Louis," and regarding the recent presentation of "Carmen" at the Municipal Theater. I quite agree with this writer that should Mr. Goltzman have selected some opera other than "Carmen," there would have been a small deficit, and the artists would not have been forced to do a kind of a "butterfly" would indeed be a wonderful opera to present on our vast opera stage, although the first scene is the only one with an exterior setting, however, we have been asked to imagine many times before in this matter of settings at the Municipal Theater, and I am sure it could be adapted to the open air successfully. The opera that I would like to see presented is "Il Pagliacci." Can any one name a better opera for outdoor presentation than this particular one? Then, too, I think that two operas should be undertaken every season by Mr. Goltzman, giving three performances of each, instead of the usual seven performances of one. That's asking a lot of St. Louisans, as the Metropolitan rarely gives more than seven performances of any opera during the season, and these at intervals. Then, I would like to see the regular Municipal Opera Company give about three or four weeks of truly grand opera during the coming season.

Build a New Bridge at St. Charles.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I THINK it is an imposition on the State as well as the taxpayers and the general public to pay $1,500,000 for the old bridge at St. Charles, which was originally built at a cost of $300,000 when a larger, stronger and more modern bridge in every way can be built for $250,000 to $300,000, or at least not exceeding half of the prospective purchase price for the present obsolete bridge.

I am writing as a resident of St. Louis all my life and as a property owner in both St. Louis and St. Charles Counties, and across this bridge and pay the toll not less than once or twice a week. The State Highway Department should certainly build a new bridge at St. Charles so as to make it possible to travel without paying toll from St. Louis to Kansas City and at the same time make such travel safe for people coming into our city from both the East and West.

F. P. MEYER.

With What Object?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IS THE Police Department engaged in ballooning the so-called Greater St. Louis Exposition? The writer is inclined to think so, after an experience last night. I was driving my automobile east on Clayton road. At the intersection of Clayton and Oakland a traffic officer refused to permit me to continue east, but forced me to turn into Oakland avenue, which was jammed with automobiles, and to crawl along with them past the Exposition entrance. Had all automobiles not going east on Clayton been permitted to continue east on Clayton, nearly half the traffic would have been taken off Oakland.

THE ANNEXATION CAMPAIGN.

It is now just 60 days, or until Oct. 26, until the people vote upon the proposal to annex St. Louis County. The campaign will presumably open about Oct. 1. There will hardly be time in that brief interval for the people upon either side of the line to familiarize themselves with the merits of the proposal.

They would with much more justice to themselves and their community begin to make up their minds now. It is not an easy matter for everybody concerned to decide in favor of the plan devised by the Board of Freeholders. It has its obvious faults. But there are always obstacles in the way of progress. It is inevitable that St. Louis will annex the county, and the question now is whether or not anything is to be gained upon either side by delay. The Post-Dispatch thinks not. It is unable to see that there is in opposition to annexation anything more than the usual discrimination to concede anything to progress. The city and the county constitute a community. Their interests are the same. The fortunes of the county are alike bound up with those of the city. If St. Louis finishes somewhere in the race among American cities, the county will finish there with it. Upon the contrary, if it holds its place among great American cities and avails itself of its natural advantages, the county will share its success. That is the primary point. All others are of secondary importance. It is not New York that is the American metropolis, with all the prestige and authority that distinction bestows. Greater New York is it that Boston, Cleveland, Detroit—every great city with which we are in competition—have taken in their environs. Exactly the same objections with which the local project is met were opposed to enlarging the metropolitan areas of all those cities.

That is, there is about every big urban community a fringe of territory that is neither country nor town. These regions are characterized by suburban towns and villages, farms and half-farms, the landscaped homes of the well-to-do escaping from the thick of the city and the scattered settlements of the poor in flight from the greed of the metropolitan landlord. In time the city engulfs all these and lies every where and uninterrupted about as London does. This is what St. Louis County is. As a separate community, something apart from the city out of which its very lifeblood flows, it has no more chance than the buffalo had when the caravans of another era came out of the East.

They deceive themselves who do not believe this. If the city does not annex the county this time, it will some time. The objections that annexation will destroy the pastoral purlieu of the county politician, that it will end the solitude of some redoubt home, or that taxes will inevitably increase in all the region added to the city—all these are at last one with the warwhoop of the Indian. They mean only that these people prefer the status quo, which was all the warwhoop of the Indian meant. They do not mean that the future is to be defeated.

St. Louis will, of course, vote for annexation. It cannot do else. It has outgrown its borders. There is, moreover, the consideration of its own fortune, the place it is to hold among cities, and the many respects in which it will make a difference whether St. Louis County is part of the metropolitan district or a loose end flapping. One of the most important of these is the health of the city. There is no uniform plan for sewage in the county, and there will be none until the city takes it over. Until that is done the city will not merely have to look upon the danger of disease from local sewers emptying into creeks, but probably most of the work done piecemeal will in the end have to be undone to take care of the region as a whole.

There is but one valid claim that the county can make for itself—that it can abundantly take care of the overflowing St. Louis. It is in that unique. In having its corporate towns, its proud political chiefs, its own courts and schools, it is only like any other county. Its good fortune is that, unlike the others, it adjoins the city.

Efforts to beat annexation will be centered upon those parts of the county where need of the city is scarcely felt. That is, in the remote valleys where the farmers are least exposed to the encroaching city and in the older suburban towns where life has for so long enjoyed a chaste detachment from the worldly metropolis. The communities looking across the line at the city's police and fire protection, at its adequate water and electrical utilities, and the difference between metropolitanism and border dwelling, are said to be almost a unit for annexation.

It is the business of the community upon both sides of the line to dissuade the opponents of annexation from setting little things above big things. If that effort is made in time, and if it is undertaken in the spirit of a common patriotism, it will succeed. We must annex the county. A great, beautiful city must overflow into it and unto the uttermost parts of it, and no other consideration can stand against that.

An electric refrigerator has been placed in the White House, which, we presume, sends to the junkie the leek with which Grover Cleveland and Dan Lambert used to keep cool, in one way and another.

THE PRINCE OF PECANS

The keepers know him as Nut No. 13,000, manly depressive. Elsewhere he is a person of great dignity. Polk Negri swears by him as the "Sterling C. Wyman, who so deftly brought her out of a recent case of hysterics. President Harding dined him at the White House as Capt. Sterling Wyman, personal representative of Harold McCormick and Ganna Walska. He was splendid as Lieutenant-Commander Ethan Allan Weinberg, on the staff of none other than the Princess Fatima of Afghanistan. Under the same cognomen he interpreted with gusto the role of Consul-General to Rumania. In 1905, as Ethan Allan Weinberg, he was the only male delegate to the National Women's Suffrage Council. Dr. Lorenz, the famous Viennese surgeon, knew him as Dr. Clifford Wyman of the New York Health Department. He has been a prominent politician both at Republican and Democratic conventions, and goodness knows what else. He has, so far as we know, done no harm, on the contrary, many hearts have been gladdened by his suave manner, and to many an occasion he has lent brilliant color. He may be, as the keepers say, Nut No. 13,000, but he wins the gold-embroidered padded cell for his achievements. He's the noblest and noblest of them all. Yes, this bird is the Prince of Pecans.

DAUGHERTY IN COURT AT LAST.

Readers of the Post-Dispatch are familiar with the history of the American Metal Company—one of our post war scandals, which comes to a head today with the appearance in court of Harry M. Daugherty, former Attorney-General, and Thomas W. Miller, former Alien Property Custodian.

This company, a $7,000,000 concern, was taken over during the war. Efforts by Americans to purchase it from its German owners failed. Subsequently a gentleman appeared in Washington as the agent of Swiss principals, who, he asserted, had bought the business from the Germans before our entrance into the war. It was a fishy story, in view of the facts which the Alien Property Custodian's office could readily have ascertained. The story was believed. The property was turned over to the Swiss claimants. Rumors of bribery followed, the substance of which was that $441,000 had been paid to Daugherty, Miller and John T. King, former National Republican Committeeman from Connecticut.

In this instance, as in others, Daugherty protested his innocence. It is a fact, however, that in this connection he was cited for contempt by a Federal grand jury for refusing to answer questions on the ground that to do so would incriminate him. It is said, too, that within the past year he turned records in his brother's bank at Washington Courthouse which the Government wanted to get hold of.

A short time ago United States Attorney Buckner of New York, in charge of the prosecution, announced that European individuals and corporations against whom charges had been made had been dropped from the proceedings. Nowtime King has died. Daugherty and Miller, therefore, are the only defendants in the trial that opens today—a trial which will engage national attention because of the erstwhile official eminence of the defendants, and because of its detonating possibilities.

GERMANY'S COUNCIL SEAT.

As soon as Germany chooses to do so, she not only can become a member of the League of Nations, she also can take a permanent seat on the League's Council. That seat has been set aside and reserved for Germany. This event seems to us a great triumph for the German nation, and for the League as well. Although it is only eight years since the war ended, Germany has gained the confidence of her law enemies. She has thrown the Hohenzollerns onto the junk pile and has established a firm republican government. She has gone about the business of reconstruction with the industry and zeal for which her people are noted. She has met the demands of the League plan without whimpering. Her currency is stabilized, her factories are smoking, her fields are being tilled.

By this display of character she has won the right to sit on the principal governing body of the League of Nations, being invited to do so by representatives of the great Powers, including those against which she not long ago waged war. Those representatives on the Council of the League did the wise and broad thing by extending the invitation. The League tossed aside the notion that Germany is an outcast nation, and made a proper distinction between Republican Germany and Hohenzollern Germany. After the savage battles of the Ruhr invasion and similar shameful efforts to bully Germany, it is pleasant to see that the Powers are again taking a civilized attitude toward her.

The Cardinals have been having trouble making the grade in the Alleghenies, but they will coast down the other side.

EXCUSING THE VENDETTA.

It is, of course, impossible to tell precisely what motives impel our local Italian-American Vendettists to take the law into their own hands and execute private vengeance on one another, to the danger and scandal of the community.

Some insight, however, can be glimpsed from a letter sent to the editor of the Post-Dispatch, attempting to excuse the existing vendetta. Among other things the writer says: "I wish you would point it in the paper that the Italian people have a right to tell the policemen about this killing business, because the policemen all in United States are all a bunch of fools. If we do go to stations and report them, the next few days with a little money they are out again walking outside as you and I would."

And again, arguing that in Italy the criminal is promptly brought to book, the writer continues: "The law in America is just for money," and repeats that it doesn't do us good to tell anything, because they will be out again, so "we take the law with our own hands."

Briefly, this writer holds that American law being impotent to punish murder, the blood feud, or vendetta, is the Italian's only recourse. Unfortunately, there is a strong basis for this belief.

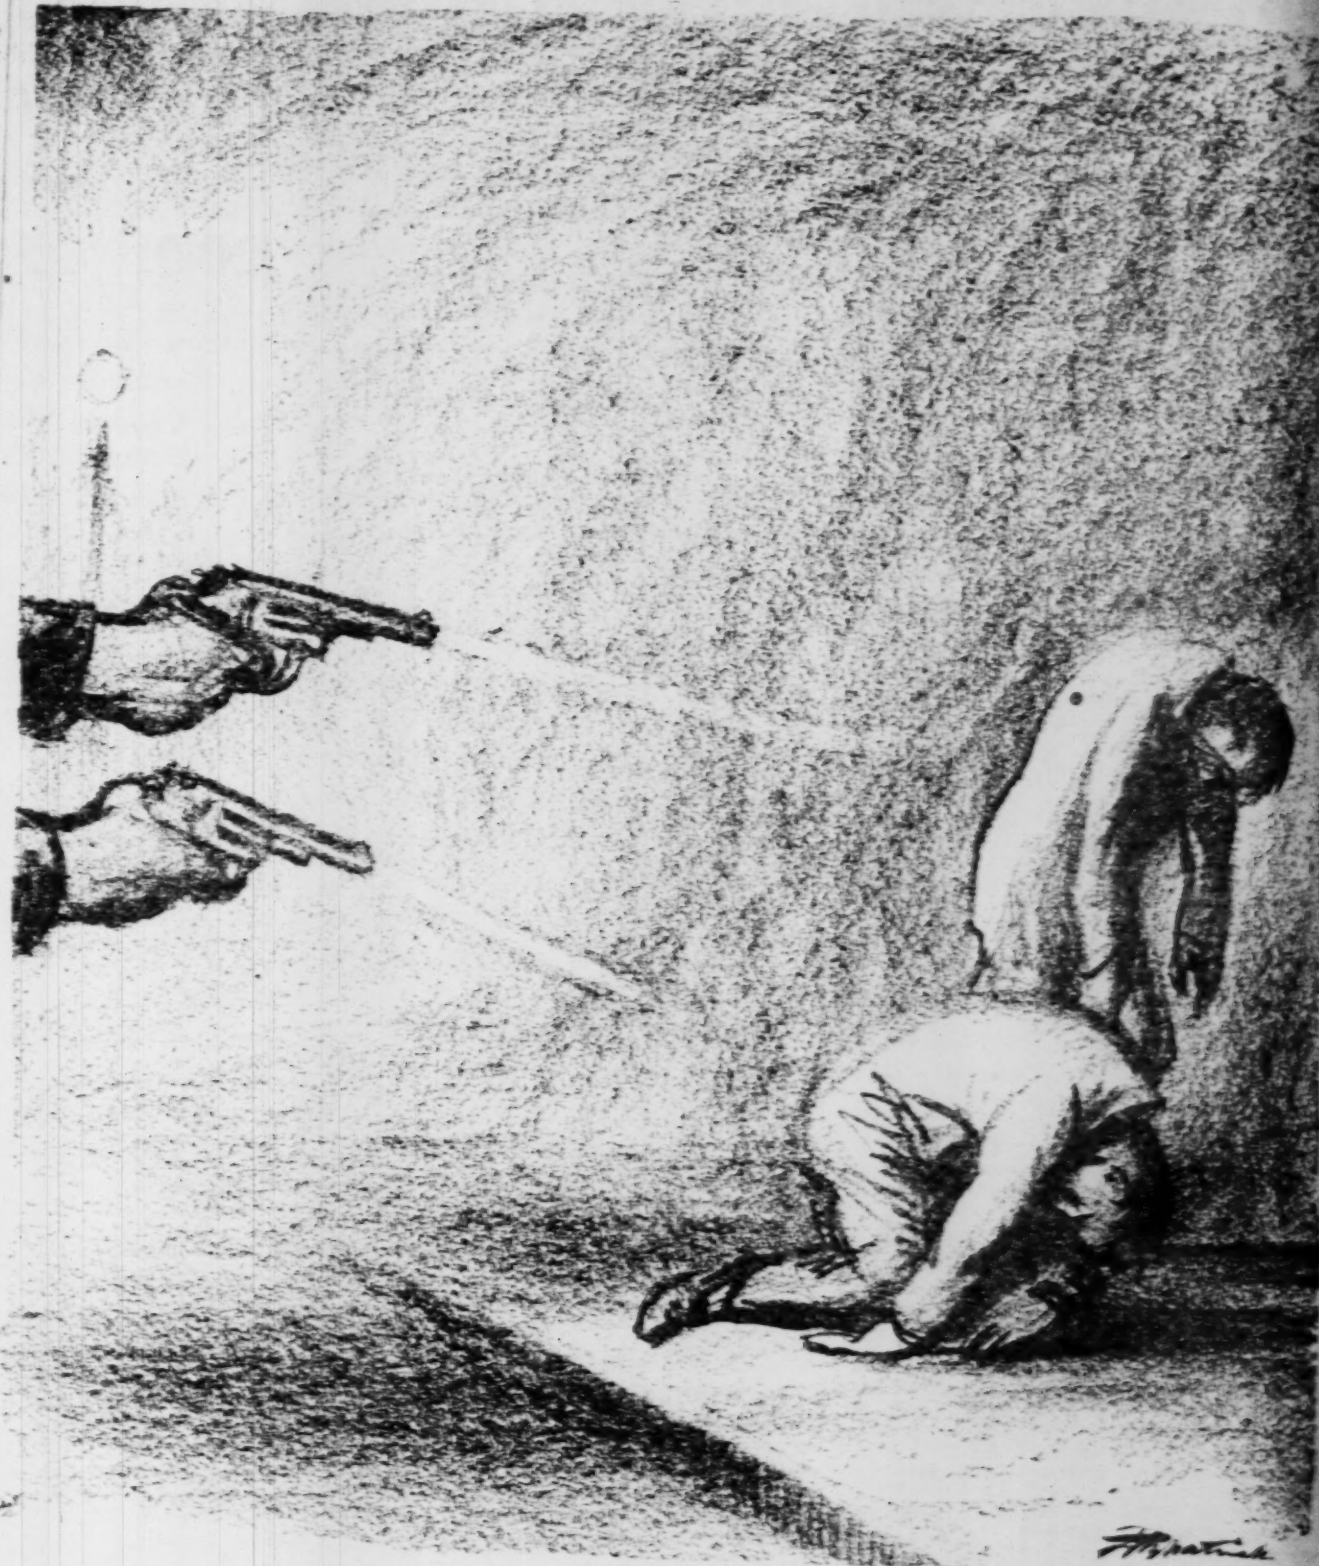

"I'M HIM."

Louis W. Hill Jr. is the grandson of James J. Hill and heir to the great Hill estate. Louis W. Hill Jr. is also a graduate of Yale and of Oxford. When Hill arrived at the tank town of Richway, Minn., the other day to take a job as section hand on his family's railroad he was met by one Bruce Ferguson, a timekeeper.

"You're Hill, aren't you?" Ferguson inquired. Here was the young man's chance to prove his democracy and to place himself upon a plane of perfect equality with the other section hands who will be his associates as he learns the railroad business. Quick as a flash came the reply: "Yes, I'm him, when do I go to work?" "With such lack of fuss and feathers," the report of this encounter goes on, "another Hill started learning the business from the ground up."

We think it would have been a better story if there had been some fuss and feathers, for example, if Bruce Ferguson, a slight bluish suffragette, had said: "Sir, if you'll pardon me, I'm him," the objective form of the pronoun, and you have used it erroneously after the contraction "I'm." In this clause, the second pronoun is an adjective of the subject, not an object, and the demonstrative case governs. Then, as the graduate of Yale and Oxford and the section of a great house stood stunned, Ferguson should have turned on his heels to return to his Virgil in the bunkhouse.

THIS FELLOW APPEARS TO BE A DEMOCRAT.

I could forgive you if you'd come here, but I could not if you continued yourself a Republican. There are reasons, such as foolishness of intellect, base doctrine of Divine Selection, and the urge of "What's-in-it-for-me," which explain if they do not excuse, affiliation with the Republican party.

"WITH ALL TRY FALSE, I LOVE THEE STILL."

That groom in Toronto is a poor sport. Besides, we believe him to be powerfully dumb. He says to annul his marriage. Was the light of his love false? No, but his teeth were. It seems that Louis XIII of France passed the following law: "Whosoever attracts in bonds of marriage any male or female persons, slave, youth, false hair, steel, pearls, adopted petticoats, high heels or false tips, will be prosecuted for seduction, and the marriage will be declared null and void if the accused is convicted."

When the only way a girl could get a fellow then must have been to listen while he talked about himself. The origin of being the beauty contests and current fashions is explained. But why all the protection for "false man?" He must have been about as dumb then as he is now. Why not another law, about as follows: "Whosoever attracts in bonds of marriage any female subject of this Majesty by means of dumb petticoats or second-hand dresses, laces, false reports of salary or position, padded shoulders, installment marriage, and if served with divorce, will be prosecuted for seduction." What about the law of the emperor? We have heard that marriage is a lottery. That makes it interesting. Must all the glorious thrill of gambling be taken from life?

What about the stone in the ring he gave her? If her teeth are false, she cannot have that four out of five he wanted. And that is a blessing not lightly to be dreamed of. A man can go with a girl long enough to lead her to the altar without finding out that her teeth are false, either he is as dreadfully dumb that he should shut up about the matter, or the girl is a wonder.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

THE MISTAKE OF THE DRY.

From the Washington Star.

IF it is not understood that the cause of prohibition has been lost because of the or straight now leveled against it. In the mistake made by the churches and the dry organizations after the adoption of the eighteenth amendment and the enactment of the Volstead law was an impartial document at least, of a great educational crusade against drinking, a crusade which had brought about a tremendous change in the habits of Americans within half a century. The mistake was in introducing education for enforcement of the prohibition law. The end saw that you can lead a horse to water but cannot make him drink. He has been carried down to the water, but he has not drunk. It is possible to prevent all drinking, if the horse were properly educated it might be as easy to make him drink as to lead him to water. If a nation were properly educated it might be much more easy to enforce prohibition. If the law is to be properly enforced, the campaign of education should be revived with ardor.

OUR CONDUCT IN HOLDERS.

From the Buffalo Courier Express.

DELEGATES to the annual convention of the National Retail Jewelers' Association were told by the manager of a department store to face a robber across the counter. "First," he said, "don't put up with it. Let them take anything they want. Second, don't look down the barrel of the revolver. It only makes you nervous and doesn't keep any in its present shot. Third, spend any time you may be given in looking at the robber. Fix his features firmly in your mind so that he may be recognized later. Up to the time of making these rules, we had taken it for granted that in holding up at least the individual member of the association, the store would never be subjected to any serious loss. So it is especially disappointing to learn that even these individuals are not so unfettered. There is, however, apparently nothing to do but to try to realize that our relations with it require vigilance and watchfulness of conduct as those suggested by the jeweler's association. That the worst of crime fiction will do about it is another problem. Frank Stockton's tale of a robber may hold some suggestions.

IMMIGRATION FROM JAPAN.

From the Syracuse Post-Standard.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD, speaking before the Williams Institute of Pacific proposed that Japanese immigration into America should be permitted under the limitations of the quota law. The prohibition of any Japanese immigration, which would be a friendly nation. It is a diplomatic mistake. There is not a single word of the Japanese prohibition which views with alarm the admission of 100 Japanese a year. That is not a State East of the Rockies where Japanese residents are unpopular. He should carry his protest to California. It was the Pacific Coast which was the Japanese prohibition which views with alarm and which intends to keep it there.

SPANISH PREMIER IN CLASH WITH KING OVER MUTINY

ders of the Government, which remains in power.

The Government this afternoon issued a note saying:

"At this time, 4 p. m., there does not remain, in the whole peninsula or in the adjacent islands, a single factory in charge of the artillery corps which has not submitted to the Government and been placed under the direction of the chiefs of other arms."

Reported Plot to Seize King Alfonso Frustrated.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Although official dispatches from Madrid assert that the mutiny in the artillery branch of the Spanish army has been quelled and that the Government is in control of the situation, there is some obscurity as to the real trend of affairs, owing to the strict censorship.

A Cabinet council has been called to meet in Madrid today and the supreme council of war and marine has been summoned to fix the responsibility of those involved in rebellion and apply penalty.

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Hendaye, Franco-Spanish frontier, says that a plot to seize King Alfonso and force him to sign an agreement of abdication was frustrated only by the prompt suppression of the military revolt and the King's departure from San Sebastian for Madrid.

The plotters who were Spanish republicans residing at other frontier towns, according to the Mail correspondent, were only awaiting news that fighting had begun between the rival military elements to cross the frontier in motor cars and make a raid on San Sebastian. They apparently hoped to find the police and loyal troops so busily occupied that they would be able to reach the palace and seize the King.

REED FOR REPEAL OF DRY AMENDMENT; WILL NOT RUN FOR SENATE

dictated by Mellon, and Mellon not only represents the big interests—and by the big interests I mean the sordid interests that are expecting special favors—but he is himself a large section of the big interests. He naturally sees every proposition from the standpoint of his surroundings.

"He knows that a heavy tariff on aluminum enriches his aluminum trust. He naturally reasons that if there is to be a tariff on aluminum, he must concede a tariff on other manufactured products. His vast investments in oil incline him toward legislation favorable to the oil producers. That in turn means that if he takes care of his own oil interests he must permit all other oil ventures to come in under that same blanket."

Mellon Tender Toward Incomes. "The vast ramifications of his banks and their interest, direct or indirect, in manufacturing and in various lines of investment naturally lead him to think tenderly of taxation on great incomes. Accordingly, his whole effort has been toward the reduction of the surtaxes on great incomes. This he carried to the extent of holding up the soldier bonus bill because it could not be paid and at the same time the surtaxes be reduced as far as he desired.

"No one with good judgment wants to overtax great incomes, but the man to determine what the tax should be ought not to be selected from those who have a special interest to serve."

Reed said the Democratic party should come out unqualifiedly against "the new-fangled doctrine of internationalism."

"It is absurd," he said, "to hear Mr. Coolidge asserting that the League of Nations has nothing to do with the World Court, while looking across the ocean we see the representatives of the League in session to determine whether or not the Senate reservations are acceptable to them and whether they will admit us to the Court."

"Another absurdity—and it is almost a tragedy—is the spectacle of the United States outside the door, hat in hand, awaiting the decision of 18 foreign gentlemen as to whether they will permit us to enter."

"I am glad to see that two Senators (Gooding of Idaho and Trammell of Florida) have finally discovered that the World Court is a part of the League of Nations, and I hope that more of the brethren will see the light."

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The Women's Christian Temperance Union, discovering Senator James A. Reed of Missouri at one with it in opposition to an initiative measure in Missouri providing repeal of the State's dry laws, today halted Reed's opposition to the repeal legislation as "the most important thing so far in the campaign."

Mrs. Ella A. Boole, national president, expressed gratification at Reed's stand, and national officers here saw in Reed's stand "a division between Eastern and Western ways."

TWO MORE CHILDREN POISONED BY SHOE DYE

They Turn Blue After Donning Footwear Colored With Liquid Polish.

Cyanosis, a "shoe-dye poison," has put two more children in City Hospital. They are John, 6 years old, and Jack, 5, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Simmons of 1246 Dolman street.

In the last three weeks five boys have become seriously ill after wearing freshly dyed shoes. Their bodies turned blue and they experienced nausea and heart depression. Physicians attributed the illness to the absorption of aniline dye, or cyanol, into the blood stream through the feet.

Shoes Dyed by Father. Mrs. Simmons told hospital attendants that her husband dyed white canvas shoes black for John and Jack about 11 a. m. yesterday and the boys donned the shoes shortly thereafter and went visiting with the parents. When John's lips became blue at 1 o'clock, his mother accused him of licking indelible lead pencils and attempted to wash away the blueness. Later Jack turned blue and realization came that he and his brother had been poisoned. They were taken home and their shoes were removed, and when the blueness remained, they were taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Simmons had read about the other three children turning blue after wearing newly dyed shoes, but, in the excitement of preparing for the visit, it did not occur to her that her children might also turn blue. There are five children in the family.

John and Jack are much better today. Their skin has regained its normal color, and they expect to attend school tomorrow. The other children who were poisoned previously also recovered quickly.

Source of the Dye. The Simmons boys' father brought the dye bottle to the hospital, showed it to the physician in charge, and then took it away, announcing he would consult a lawyer. The physician said it was the same dye used in the other cases—a liquid produced by the Herriott Polish Co. of St. Louis, one of the largest concerns of its kind. The physician said there was no warning printed on the label. The other bottles bore a warning: "After dyeing, do not wear shoes for six hours."

FLOOD WIPES OUT SIX

VILLAGES IN NEW MEXICO

Lake Created by Elephant Butte Dam Rises Slowly Over Former Trading Points.

By the Associated Press.
EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 7.—Six villages on the Rio Grande in New Mexico have been wiped out by the rising waters of Lake B. M. Hall, which was created by the building of Elephant Butte Dam. Of the six, all that remains is an old church built on a hill near Parajo. There were no casualties, as the waters rose slowly as the lake was filled by summer floods.

Cantaderas, nearly two centuries old, was the first of the villages built; then Parajo, Santa Reola, San Alvaro, San Jose and Alamogordo.

Parajo was at one time the metropolis of this region, where cattle and sheep men came for supplies and for aid when pressed by Apache Indians.

The villages were included in a land grant of 400,000 acres given to Pedro Armendariz in 1820 by the King of Spain, on condition that he keep his employees armed to protect the settlements against attacks by Indians. When the territory became a part of the United States, a patent to the land grant was given by the Government. Title to the farms and villages was retained by the "squatters," however, courts ruling that they had acquired possession by long residence.

U. S. EXPORTS SHOW INCREASE EXCEPT THOSE TO EUROPE

South America and Australia Now Buying Twice as Much as in 1922.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Exports of American goods, especially manufactures, increased in the movement to every part of the world, except Europe, during the fiscal year ended June 30, Dr. Julius Klein, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, has found in a special survey.

The increase has been progressive over a period of four years and the United States is now selling more than twice as much to South America as in 1922; more than two and one-half times as much in Oceania, which includes most of the Pacific territory, and nearly twice as much in Africa, Australia and New Zealand. English speaking countries with standards of living and economic environment very similar to those in our Middle West, find American products increasingly adapted to their wants," said Dr. Klein. "Our sales to these two countries of nearly $200,000,000 in 1925-26 represented not much less than $20 per capita of their population. This figure is all the more remarkable when it is borne in mind that our own aggregate imports from the entire world amount to about $35 per capita."

TWO OKLAHOMA MEN DROWN WHEN BOAT GOES OVER FALLS

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Ok., Sept. 7.—Two Oklahomans were drowned and their three companions narrowly escaped death yesterday when a motor boat in which they were crossing Spavinaw Lake became unmanageable in the current and was swept over the falls to a churning pool 40 feet below. The dead are W. G. Harmon, 36 years old, and L. R. Hendley, 37.

Their companions, who were bruised and cut, were Roy Stewart and W. J. McClatchey and Ralph McCall, deputy game warden.

Neither of the two bodies has been found and hundreds of tourists and visitors at the lake have been divided into squads to patrol Spavinaw Creek to prevent the victims being washed away.

Sister of Argentine Liberator Dies.

By the Associated Press.
BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 7.—Dona Edelmira Mitre de Rosendo, sister of Gen. Bartolome Mitre, Argentine liberator and the founder of La Nacion, Latin-America's greatest newspaper, is dead at the age of 97. She was the great-aunt of Don Jorge Mitre, present publisher of La Nacion.

Her Tragic Mistake

THOSE who knew her would have said: "Such things don't happen to girls like Marion." Certainly there was nothing in her character that was common or cheap. She was well educated; she had high ideals; her every thought and word were refinement itself.

Yet, in spite of her fine intelligence, her high ideals, she was to find herself subject to the same vicissitudes of Fate that pursue all mortals who blindly try to make right out of wrong.

It all started when, refusing to live idly on the inheritance her father had left her, Marion took a position in the office of a prominent law firm. It was there that she met and fell in love with Terry Dixon.

And there seemed to be no question that Terry returned her love. Twice he had been engaged to the wild, mad-cap heiress, Helen Carlson. Each time, for no apparent reason, she had publicly broken the engagement. And though Terry had been devoted to Helen, he swore to Marion that his love for Helen was dead.

But, all too often, as Marion was to learn to her sorrow, it is the unexpected that shapes human destiny.

While on an outing in the mountains with her fiancé, they were driven by a terrible storm to seek refuge in a solitary cabin and she had scarcely crossed the threshold when she found she had taken the first step into a world of terror, desperate conflict and peril that in later days she was to find almost indescribable.

What Marion went through during the terrible days that followed is vividly told by Marion herself in "Out of the Storm," which appears complete in True Story Magazine for October. Don't miss this thrilling, soul-stirring, true-life narrative.

"The Curse of Suspicion"—Once a humble worker in a shoe factory, Mary is today the wife of a millionaire whom she saved from drowning. At her command is every luxury that money and social position can provide. Yet, as she rides in her limousine down Riverside Drive in solitary grandeur, the face that haunts her day dreams is not that of her rich husband, but of Jimmy Donlin, foreman of a department in the factory where she used to work. If every girl and every woman could read this poignant story straight from the heart of a former factory girl they could not help but realize that true love brings more happiness than all the riches in the world.

"A Wife's Awakening"—Marge's marriage to Kendal Windsor was, she thought, the most glorious adventure in happiness that any girl could experience. But when, in the delirium of a dangerous illness, he revealed a terrible secret in his life, Marge suddenly found herself confronted by a situation that few women would have the courage to face. A strange, soul-stirring narrative.

Finds True Story A Great Help

Editor of True Story Magazine

Olar, S. C.

Dear Sir:

I have read several copies of True Story and being a minister of the Gospel I would hesitate indorsing any publication if I was not sure of its moral worth.

I do not hesitate to say that I find True Story a help to me in preaching and warning the young people whom I serve against the trials and temptations that await them in the school of life.

I think that if more mothers would provide this magazine for their girls to read we ministers would hear less of the sad stories of fallen girls. May God bless you in your work of helping the young by warning them of the dangers in life that are controlled by that satanic power in the world today.

I commend you for your plan of having a Ministerial Board pass on your stories before being published.

If this is worth anything to you in carrying on the work you are engaged in I am glad to be of service and herewith give you permission to use this in any way you see fit.

With best wishes for your continued success, I am,

Yours very truly,

(Rev.) C. P. CHEWNING

HOG CALLERS AT RADIO SHOW

Omaha Woman Competes for World Championship.

By the Associated Press.
OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 7.—Five piped pipers of pigdom did their "poo-oo-ee, hoo-wee porkies" and other yodels before the microphone at the opening last night of the world's championship hog-calling contest, being held here this week in conjunction with a radio show.

Considerable individuality prevailed. From a combination of "poo-ing," "pig-pig-pig" blended with a hog-like grunt the calls soared through a varied series of screeches, shrieks and yells. Omaha callers opened the contest, and Fred Patzel, Nebraska champion, and Mrs. E. C. Warner, woman champion of Nebraska, gave brief recitals. Patzel swelled and rolled up the scale with his "poo-ing." Mrs. Warner declared she was calling little pigs with her "pig-pig-pig" and even summoned the "runt" with an individual call.

ARRANGING CHILD MARRIAGES A BIG MISSIONARY JOB

Dr. Jennie V. Fleming of Columbia, Mo., Home After 18 Years in India, Recounts Experiences.

MAKES 15 TO 25 MATCHES A YEAR

Life Partners So Selected as to Promote Evangelistic Cause — Troubles With Caste System.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
COLUMBIA, Mo.—The function of the modern missionary is more than preaching and teaching. She must enter into the social and economic life of the people with whom she is working. Dr. Jennie V. Fleming, who has just returned to her home here from her third six-year term of missionary service at India, is authority for the statement.

In addition to her regular work of Christianizing and doctoring, Dr. Fleming has had the responsibility of arranging several marriages among the boy and girl converts of the Christian faith. Arranging marriages so that the missionary cause will be better promoted is by no means an unimportant part of the work.

In establishing little matrimonial bureaus the missionary is wisely making capital out of customs that have existed for ages through India where young people of marriageable age—very young in India—have little to say in the choice of life partners. Dr. Fleming arranges for 15 to 25 marriages a year.

Caste system an obstacle.
A real impediment to missionary work, Dr. Fleming finds is the caste system. She went to India thinking that there were only four castes, but now she says that there are thousands, castes within castes. Society is so stratified that often Brahmins of one subdivision will have nothing to do with Brahmins of another. Of course, any marriages that are arranged must be within one caste.

For many years, Dr. Fleming traveled from village to village in ox carts, using ponies during the rainy season. She often has had trouble crossing swollen streams during the wet weather. On one occasion, she and other members of her party were ferried across a little river during high water in a scrap kettle propelled by an almost naked young fisherman who swam alongside.

Dr. Fleming and other missionaries experienced equally great hardships in matters of cooking and eating. They had no stoves and they were compelled to cook out of doors in rude mud ovens. In the matter of food itself, missionaries have to be very careful as sometimes the food that Americans are used to are quite offensive to Indians.

"Yes, there are snakes in India," admitted Dr. Fleming. "Lots of them, and they are insidious and venomous. Of course, everybody knows about the cobra, but even worse is the little kariat, which is about two feet long. He crawls into your cupboard, into your bed, into your baby buggies and he is ready when you come with a very poisonous fang."

Fleets and Leopards, Too.

"We have man-eating tigers and leopards, too, to add zest to life. Most of the people of India are farmers of the most primitive sort and most of them are poor. They farm just as they have for centuries. They use wooden plows and tread out their grain as in Biblical times. Rice is the chief product."

"But in spite of the hardships missionaries have experienced, their life is getting better and more interesting. They travel now in small motor cars, have talkies machines, daily papers, and are expecting before a great while to be able to listen in on the rest of the world with radios which will do much to relieve the oppressive isolation."

WOMAN SWIMMER SAVED FROM STORM IN CHESAPEAKE

She Is Picked Up By Fishing Launch After Being Believed to Have Been Drowned.

By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Rose Morsberger, missing for nearly five hours and believed drowned in the Chesapeake in an attempt to swim the 12 miles of salt water between Tolchester and Baywise shore, telephoned Bay Shore from the mouth of the Middle River last night that she was safe.

Mrs. Morsberger was picked up by a fishing launch which ran for shore in an electrical and rain storm. She retired to a general store, dressed in men's clothing, none the worse for her experience. The other five swimmers, one of them a 12-year-old girl, were taken from the water by the official boat when the storm neared.

Mrs. Morsberger, a short time before had declined to leave the water when officials said she appeared to be straining and it was feared she had gone under during the confusion of gathering in the swimmers strung over a mile and a half of water. She was picked up about two miles off her course.

Women's Skirts Also Continue to Shrink and Their Sleeves Get No Longer.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 7.—Dictators and Kings the world over are trying to reform woman's dress by various methods. But skirts continue to shrink, sleeves get no longer and the edicts of man have not covered up the bare necks which various high-priced officials pretend to find objectionable.

Mustapha Kemal's press agents would have one believe Turkish women have cast aside the veil at his suggestion and altered their costumes to harmonize with the women of the West.

Yet travelers who have been away from the great cities in Turkey say the Mohammedan women are clinging to their veils. Turkish men had to lay aside their fezzes, and some Turks were executed for clinging to them.

Edicts Fall in Greece.
Pangloss tried to lengthen women's skirts by law in Greece, but had to abandon the attempt.
Greek women went to jail rather than comply with the orders of the Athenian dictator.

King George let it be known in Cannes that he thought very short skirts were unattractive, and many of the women who associate with royalty donned longer gowns. But he was too wise to attempt any general reform in woman's dress.

Both he and Queen Mary have done much to prevent extreme fashions from prevailing among women who are received at Court.
Mussolini's effort to standardize the dress of Italian women and lessen the cost of dress by having a uniform for women is creating much amusement among British officials who had to do with the effort made in England during the Great War to provide a standard costume for women at a remarkably cheap price.

yer and a director of the National City Co., a subsidiary of the National City Bank, was killed in an automobile accident near here late last night.

He was being driven to New York in a roadster by Guy Cary, an official of the National City Bank, when the car skidded in a heavy rainstorm and turned over.
Mr. Crews was caught under the wreckage and died soon afterward.
Cary escaped with slight injuries.

Mr. Crews was born at Mount

Champion Weighs 194 Pounds After Sessions With Carpenter, Brown, Saxon and Burke — Edgren Says Jack Could Defend His Title Tomorrow.

By Robert Edgren.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 7.—Jack Dempsey's last workout yesterday before his three-day rest was as snappy as anyone could wish. I'll have to revise my first notion of the champ's condition, when he worked rather heavily on a dull and rainy day. The sun was bright and the air dry and warm, and Jack took the wraps off and enjoyed himself. It might be said that the enjoyment was a solo performance. All the sparring partners took a dusting.

Jack started with Carpenter, the well-known navy champion. Carpenter is an earnest young man with strong legs that hold him up like a cork. Saxon finished the round with a good law, and a husky wallop of his own. He needed all these assets.

Dempsey pursued him steadily, standing straight up. He abandoned the slower crouching attack, and slipped in body punches and clips on the chin until the Saller seemed to have a typhoid in a row. Carpenter, somewhat bruised about the cheek bones, where the padded mask didn't protect him, rolled to the ropes at the bell and clambered down with undignified relief.

Brown Got Bumped. Jimmy Brown, the swift-footed gentleman, who has been giving Jack most of his leg exercise, was next. At first Brown essayed a masterly retreat, but Dempsey was after him so fast that he gave it up and turned to fight. He put over a corking right-hand punch on Dempsey's chin, with no effect apparent to the naked eye even from the edge of the platform where I stood. Sock, sock, sock. Brown patted Dempsey and tried to get away. Jack was like a flash, nimble of foot, standing straight, shooting punches through everywhere and knocking Brown from side to side.

Brown fought manfully, alternating slugging periods with swift flight, but there was no getting away from Dempsey's fast feet and faster hands.

The third round was with Frankie Bush, a fast welterweight. Dempsey studied the trick of drawing a punch and putting over a faster counter. Bush fought aggressively and started many spots, but most of the time Dempsey landed first. Bush also left the ring somewhat battered.

Jack Takes 'Em on the Nose. Dempsey, who hadn't even drawn a long breath, signed around and waited 30 seconds for Johnny Saxon of Bridgeport, another welter. Saxon had been laying off a few days after running into one of Jack's lefts. This Saxon lad, they say, has had only 27 fights. But he is a fast and rugged citizen. He looks like a saved-off heavy-weight. He sailed right into Dempsey and punched him on the nose with a tearing left. Dempsey pushed his nose forward for another one and reached for Saxon's body. The glove thumped loudly and Saxon brought his right hand around in a wicked swing that again caught Dempsey flush on the nose. Dempsey never smiles while he's at work. He's grim and business-like. He didn't smile now. Mov-

Case in Hands of Owner, Ball, Says Friel — Ernie Starts Practice Today.

By the Associated Press. DULUTH, Minn., Sept. 7.—Ernie Nevers, former Stanford University football star, plans to lead his band of Nevers' Eskimos, Duluth's team in the National Professional Football League, to their fall training camp at Two Harbors, Minn., 20 miles north of here, on Lake Superior, today.

Nevers arrived in Duluth last night. He motored north from St. Louis and is reported to have been given a furlough from the St. Louis Browns for the remainder of the season.

"It's Up to Mr. Ball," Friel, Business Manager Friel of the Browns, when asked concerning the Nevers case, asserted that "it was up to Mr. Ball."

"I cannot say anything," said Friel. "Nevers has been corresponding with Mr. Ball for some time and what decision was reached, I do not know."

"We cannot do anything in the matter until Mr. Ball returns. He is touring to St. Louis from California. We have been expecting him for some time."

"Before Mr. Ball went to California, we talked about the Nevers case. At that time Mr. Ball said he thought we could let him go a little earlier. If he meant this early, I do not know."

"The matter will be cleared up when he returns. If it is all right with him, it's all right with us."

Meeting to Plan
World's Series
Called by Landis

Officials of Pennant Contenders Will Formulate Plans at Pittsburgh.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—A conference to plan for the 1926 world baseball series was called today by K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, for Pittsburgh on Saturday morning, Sept. 11.

Judge Landis invited the first four clubs in the American and National Leagues to be represented at the conference. In the American League this embraces New York, Cleveland, Washington and Philadelphia, and in the National League St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Chicago.

Landis made Walter Camp's all-American team guard in 1924. Slaughter will report immediately to Grange at Aurora, Ill., where the Bears are in training.

ENOCH ARDEN TALE DONE IN LIFE WAR VETERAN

Former Soldier Lost Memory, Regained It After Long Wanderings and Found Wife Re-Married.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PETOSKEY, Mich., Sept. 7.— History more absorbingly interesting than the one depicted in Lord Tennyson's famous poem,
"Enoch Arden," has been unfolded, it is all woven around a Petoskey girl, now in her early twenties, who married a second time because she thought her first husband was dead, but who, after a few years, turned up recently claiming their two children, one of whom was born after he left Petoskey, and whom, until this week, she had never seen.

The girl is the former Dorothy Medlin, who, when 14, was so convinced to fight Germany that after her brother had joined the army, she took his old Boy Scout uniform and "bummed" rides all the way to Grand Rapids, Mich., where she enlisted. She was married to a man named Schiedel, but later was sent home to her mother, Mrs.
Schiedel, but later was allowed to aid in canteen work in New York City.

This spirit of patriotism which was in Dorothy's heart meant that she was to be wedded to a soldier, and so it came to pass that when her brother came home she met Sgt.
William E. Davis, who came from battle-scarred fields of France, where he had suffered shrapnel wounds in stomach and abdomen and had been shell shocked and blinded. He had been in the hospital six times, but had recovered sufficiently so that after his marriage to Dorothy he entered the employ of the Petoskey Portland Cement Co. and for a time all seemed well.

Went Away to Hospital.
But not long after the birth of the first baby, the old soldier suffered the ex-Sergeant so much that he was obliged to go to the Reed Hospital in Washington, D. C., for another operation.
The second child was born three weeks after he left Petoskey.
Later, when the young mother returned to locate her husband at the hospital she was informed there were three William E.
Davis enrolled there. One had died, one had walked away when guard was watching and the third was not her man. The two who had not died were reported to have blank minds and it was thought the Davis Dorothy wanted was the one who had died. By the time the new baby was seven months old.

Dorothy went to Flint and tried to support her little children. For a long time she hopefully waited for her father and wondering from place to place with remembrance of her or of their little ones. She tried broadcasting her picture by radio and had her story and pictures printed in many newspapers, but three years after she had last seen him she filed a bill in Flint for a divorce and alimony and was awarded the custody of the children. That was two years ago.

Dorothy Married Again.
Not long after obtaining the divorce Dorothy was married to Paul Pringle of Flint. Pringle had an adopted son of nine, and now he and Dorothy have a baby of their own. Last winter Dorothy's mother, Mrs. Schiedel, passed the winter with her at her Flint home, and when she came back to Petoskey this summer she brought the children by the first marriage with her for an outing.
But now tragedy stalks upon the scene.
Davis was not dead. He was the man who had eluded the guards and had walked away from the Reed Hospital in Washington. He had lost all remembrance of his wife and children, but he had ever seen a girl named Dorothy or that he was the father of one or possibly two children. He received an assignment at the reformatory at Rock Island, Ill., and went there to Cheyenne, Wyo.
When he re-enlisted in New York and after a while there was assigned to duty in Detroit.
It was in Detroit that the miracle happened. He was struck hard on the head by a golf ball while on the course and rendered unconscious. When he regained his consciousness he remembered Dorothy and the children, and he had his buddy write to Mrs.
Schiedel for information. Mrs.
Schiedel replied the children were with her in Petoskey, but did not know that Dorothy was in Flint.
She needed time to think matters over and to confer with her daughter.

Find His Children.
The other day the father drove to Petoskey and encountered his son. He asked where Dorothy was and the youngster replied:
"She lives in Flint and is married." Then the soldier saw the one he never had seen before, and was at first determined to take one of the children away with him. He felt that Dorothy had another child and that he had nobody.

Mrs. Schiedel was firm in refusal. The Court had granted her custody to Dorothy and she was here, she said. Then he called his former wife on the Head of New Miners' Union Worked in Mines 44 Years

H. Medlin Organized Interstate Brotherhood to Gain Justice for Western Workers, He Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MACON, Mo., Sept. 7.—President H. Medlin of the Interstate Brotherhood of Miners, storm center of recent attacks by the United Mine Workers' officials because of his activity in organizing the miners west of the Mississippi River and obtaining an independent scale with the coal operators, has engaged in coal mining and the development of shale and clay deposits for 44 years. When in the coal business he was a member of the miners' union.

He has worked in coal mines in all capacities and took up the matter of organizing the miners west of the Mississippi, he says, because there was a general feeling that the scale to be formulated next April at the national convention of the United Mine Workers would bring no relief to the Western miners.

"The Interstate Brotherhood of Miners was organized for the purpose of putting the Western miners in a position where they could negotiate a scale independent of the East," said President Medlin in an interview today. "Since the starting of the Jacksonville scale, coal has been pouring steadily across Missouri for Western consumers, and Missouri railroads have been using Eastern-mined coal.

No Hope in Convention.
"This means more business for the East and none for the West.
With the vote of 20 to 1 against us in the convention, it is not likely the situation will be changed at the national meeting next spring.

"We want to see the work started in the Missouri, Arkansas and other Western coal fields at once, if possible. Assurances have been received from some of the large operators that when we can offer them the services of a certain number of men—one concern says from 125 to 150—they will negotiate with us.

"Our work now is to get in touch with miners who have gone to other states and offer them work back in their home camps where they have their families and all their own in the world. Quite a number have written they will be glad to return on assurances of work.

"In Arkansas, they have formed an organization similar to ours.
Eventually all these Western organizations will be merged, and we will act together, for it is clear to every one now that the West must act independently of the East if Western men are to remain in the coal business.

Not a "Scab" Movement.
"This is in no sense a nonunion or a 'scab' movement. It is a practical application of the age-old principle that no man or set of men has a right to govern except by the consent of the governed. They tell us we ought to abide by the vote of the majority. It was the vote of the majority, as represented by the Jacksonville wage scale, that put the Western miners out of business.
The majority vote is interested in keeping the business in the East. It is the majority vote that sends long distance telephone and insisted more.

This telephone conversation was shock to Dorothy, for it was the first time she had heard his voice in years and the first time in those years that she became positive that he was alive. But she, too, was firm.

Then Dorothy came up to Petoskey to talk things over. Davis withdrew his claims and took the youngsters out and bought them everything they needed and many things they didn't need. He told Dorothy he would send her $10 every week for their board and buy them clothes besides and was told they could come to visit him any time, and that he could come to visit them. He has left Petoskey and is on a furious. When he gets the discharge he is seeking he will enter business.

Davis left Petoskey in tears, but unlike Enoch Arden, he has something to look forward to. He will see his children frequently.

Miners' Storm Centers.

PRESIDENT H. MEDLIN.

strings of coal cars hour by hour over Missouri railroad lines to supply Missouri consumers with coal, while Missouri has inexhaustible beds of a better product than is coming into her borders from other states.

"We say that situation is unjust to the men who have their homes and all their possessions here, and that it is the part of good citizenship to remedy this condition in the interest of our own workmen and our own business interests.

"If there is anything wrong about that, we would be glad to have the officers of the United Mine Workers point out to us the wrong. To call names and say harsh things is no answer to the very serious proposition we present, and I feel sure the attacks made upon two of our officers by the United Mine Workers officials at the recent meeting here did not take very well with the public, which, after all, is the main party at interest in the supply of a product so vitally necessary as coal."

Closed Mines Lose Money.
President Medlin expressed the opinion that the Western coal operators would not again enter into a conference with the United Mine Workers.

With the adoption of the Jacksonville scale, the operators of the Southwest closed down their mines.
In the Bevier district, this put from 1200 to 1500 men out of employment and dealt a hard blow to the town.

As another reason for an early resumption of work instead of awaiting the doubtful prospects of a satisfactory scale in April, President Medlin said that every idle day was a loss to the big plants in Missouri, because of falls of rock in rooms and entries, the seepage of water which rusted rails and involved large pumping costs, the decay of moist timbers and the loss-ing of contracts that should be made now. Even were the mines opened today, it would take some time to get them in running order and to make contracts for the output. To wait until April, President Medlin said, would mean the loss of nearly a year's business.

SKELTONS OF PREHISTORIC INDIANS FOUND IN KENTUCKY
Crude Ornaments Used as Headdresses and War Implements Also Dug Up.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
LEXINGTON, Ky.—Prehistoric skeletons of nine members of the Fort Ancient culture of Indians in Ohio were unearthed after more than 400 years of rest in an old Indian cemetery in Greenup County, Ky., near Pullerton, by Prof. William S. Webb of the University of Kentucky and R. Denton, Lexington banker and business man, who brought the remains to Lexington yesterday.

Many crude ornaments, used by the Indians as headdresses and heads, together with a number of fragments of the old war implements, were found by Prof. Webb.
On another excursion to this ancient burial ground, discovered two skeletons and a headdress of 12 bear jaws.

The finding of the bear jaws, which had been sawed off smoothly to fit the head, solved a problem that has for many years defied solution by archeologists. Several jawbones have been found in Ohio, and archeologists have been at a loss to determine the reason for the smooth slide. According to Prof.

TEXAS WATERMELON GROWERS LOSE HEAVILY

Low Prices and Too Much Rain Greatly Reduce Shipments.

By the Associated Press.
WEATHERFORD, Tex.—Extremely low prices, South Texas competition, the "bearish" attitude of buyers who lost up to $4000 each last year, and honeydew blight have operated to force a low ebb in the watermelon trade.
Melon raisers were hit hard by this adverse combination. The solemn-faced old courthouse clock still sees the green wagon loads of melons mass around the Weatherford square. But the trouble is, it sees some of them go back home for hog rations, and others sold for from $4 to $7 a ton, a decidedly unprofitable price range.

Shipments Smaller.
One firm brought a load of melons to town recently and received a top bid of 5 cents each, which he refused. He unloaded them in the back yard of Editor
H. E. Letson of the Weatherford Herald, whose youngsters feasted gratified for a week. Frequently at the end of a hard market day, unsold melons are left on the courthouse lawn for anyone to carry off.
Instead of the usual 1200 to 1500 loads of melons rolling out of Weatherford, shipments this year probably will not exceed 400 cars.
Buyers this season refuse to "roll" a car as formerly. That is, they will not buy a car and start it north trusting to sell it on arrival in Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago or Minneapolis.

Rain Ruined Quality.
The market usually opens here at from $25 to $40 a ton for the first car. This year the first car brought growers $8.50. Big melons sell no better than the 40-pound average.

Too much rain at the wrong time caused watery meat in some melon patches, and affected the size standard generally. The largest melon of the Tom Watson variety thus far reported weighed 77 pounds and was grown by T.
A. White of Poolville. Some of the round gumbo melons now coming in will weigh around pounds. The gummos, however, have practically no market outside this county and not many are planted.

TEXAS GAS FRANCHISE FIGHT

Two Companies Struggling to Control Distribution.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok.—After a Texas court dissolved an injunction that forbade the Lone Star Gas Co. to lay lines in the town of Vernon to install a system of natural gas distribution, the city commission of Vernon revoked the company's franchise. The company continued work, however, claiming rights under a franchise granted some time ago to G. M. Church of Wichita Falls, which the Lone Star Co. says it acquired. The Upham Gas Co., which has a franchise in Vernon asserts the Church franchise is invalid.

The Lone Star and Upham interests are struggling to control gas distribution in several of West Texas towns. Both companies are laying pipe lines to Vernon from Panhandle gas fields.

BELL HAS VARIED HISTORY

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 7.— A steamboat bell, used on the Missouri River boats "Emily" and "Emily II" was the first bell used in the West Main Street Methodist Church at West Plains, Mo., near here. The bell was loaned the church by Frank Blackiston, pioneer resident of Howell County, who brought the bell from St.
Joseph.

It was manufactured in Philadelphia in 1851 for Frank Blackiston's father at a cost of $1250.
After being used on the two ships, which ran between Bismarck, S. D., and St. Louis, the bell was loaned to the City of St. Joseph where it was used as a fire alarm for a number of years. It was sold recently in Memphis, Tenn., and now is back in river boat service on the Mississippi.

OIL GROUP STRONG ON CURB EXCHANGE

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—After the three-day interval, the Clark market today was a little more active than in previous trading sessions, trading being in line with expectations that following the resumption of business many stocks would be in demand. The movement, however, was not without pressure, while the majority of leading issues advanced.

The stock market was directly influenced by the fact that public opinion was in favor of a continuation of a survey of labor activity in the petroleum industry and industry generally for determining the volume of crude oil production.

It was reported that oil leases had substantial value. Commercial oil being a feature in the new revised income tax law, the public was expected to be interested about a point and there was a vigorous effort to get the bill passed.

The Prairie, Standard oil of Indiana and Gulf Oil Co. Gulf Oil dropped a point and a half, while the Standard oil of Indiana

5. A number of the public utilities were also in active demand, but several of the stocks which had been established at high er levels reflected profit-taking sales. American Light and Traction, after moving from $1.25 to $1.30, was the only stock to rise. Bond and Share and Electric Inventories were flat. American Gas and Electric, Consolidated Gas, and American Electric Power were down. Industrials were irregular. Lobby Group, after a 10% drop, dropped another 5% to 10%. A natural "choke" moved up five points to the new high of 77. Glen Alden, after a 10% drop, dropped another 5% to 10%. Gillette Safety Razor opened up over 10% to 10.50, after a 10% drop. The demand for Journal Times, which made a 10% drop, was strong. The demand for the weak feature, being a weak time, was the greater part of the day. General Motors was weakly traded.

Berlin Music Teacher Confesses He Caused 22 Deaths.

By the Associated Press.

JESSE POMEROY'S 50TH YEAR BEHIND BARS

Massachusetts Man, Slayer at 15, Has Spent 41 Years in Solitary Confinement.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Jesse Harding Pomerooy, the State Prison's oldest life-term convict, today rounded out 50 years behind the bars, all of them a span of "living hell" in solitary confinement.

Sixty-five years old and still hopeful of ultimate freedom, Pomerooy is believed to have set a record for prison endurance.

The prison doors closed behind him in 1876 as a 15-year-old boy. Convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to be hanged, his extreme youth won commutation to life imprisonment and solitary confinement.

In such state he grew through young manhood to middle age, and nine years ago came into the comparative freedom of the prison building, an old man. Annually his mother carried her fight for a pardon to the Governor. Annually her request was refused, and since her death Pomerooy has continued the unsuccessful fight alone.

Through a system of self education, involving extensive reading, Pomerooy has won recognition as a student. He is a frequent contributor to "The Monitor," the prison paper, in the form of verse written under the name of "Grandpa."

Prison authorities have never allowed him to be interviewed, but a friend visiting him recently gained two facts, that he is opposed to capital punishment and that he saved money and contributed to the World War Liberty loans.

"After every capital punishment case another serious crime is committed," said Pomerooy. "Society imprisoned Pomerooy because he killed," he told his friend, "but accepted his money to make it possible for others to kill."

Indicted As Student's Slayer.

By the Associated Press.

LEWISVILLE, Ark., Sept. 7.—R. E. Cornelius was indicted on a charge of first-degree murder yesterday in connection with the killing of R. B. McKnight of Augusta, a University of Arkansas senior, at a house party near Stamps on Aug. 28.

GERMANY A LAST TAKE
OF NATIONS

Assembly, by Unanimous Vote, Admits Berlin
Government and Gives It Permanent Council Seat

THREE NEW PLACES
ON BODY CREAM

Report From Frontiers
That Spanish Cal
Has Decided to Withdraw From League.

By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, Sept. 8.—Germany was unanimously elected a member of the League of Nations by the seventh assembly.
(The election of Germany to League membership automatically makes operative the Locarno covenant.)
The assembly also approved designation of Germany to a permanent seat in the League Council and an increase in the number of nonpermanent Council members from six to nine. Both these measures also were adopted unanimously.

Forty-eight states participated in the voting. Applause shook the hall as the result was announced.

France First to Vote.
When the vote on admitting Germany to the League was taken, Foreign Minister Briand France pronounced a sonnet and turned his eyes to the press galleries as if he were the world to go forth through the world that France was welcome her ancient enemy the fold of conciliation and unity.

Foreign Minister Vandervelde Belgium with equal enthusiasm proclaimed approval of German admission, while Sir Austen Chamberlain Britain's contribution to unite on behalf of Great Britain crisp, clear and easily throughout the crowded assembly.

Despite protests from the dissident states against the of linking Germany's election to approval of an increase in number of nonpermanent seats from six to nine, this amendment was ratified, and unanimously. Three seats for America, on the council are assured.

Charge of Steam Roller Tax
In criticizing the linking of Germany's election with the question of enlarging the Council, Bo-Louden of Holland and Dr. Niof Norway charged that steam-roller tactics were being used.
Nansen expressed surprise statement by Dr. Motta of Swi-land that, if the non-perm-council membership were not increased, Germany's election would be imperiled. Both sides however, admitted that the crisis must be solved as soon possible.

Foreign Minister Loefergren Sweden also protested at the the two questions, terming it a tempt to stifle discussion in the Assembly on the reorganization of the Council. He pointed out many delegates opposed increasing the number of Council seats because it would strengthen Council's power and lessen the influence of the Assembly.

Like Dr. Loefergren and Dr. Ni-Sweden, he accepted the situation so to assure the election of Germany save the League, but he was that there must be no repetition in attempt to sag the Assembly.

Germany Notified.
President Nitschke of the assembly was visibly moved when announced Germany's unanimous admission. M. Nitschke is duke Ferdinand which precipitated the World War.

"It shows, after all," he said, "that those men of faith right, when during the League's last March (when Germany's election was blocked), were not disheartened by difficulties which seemed almost overcoming. We have accomplished today, by voting Germany in, one of the most necessary, most desired and most important tasks in development of the League of Nations."

Two minutes after adjournment of the Assembly, secretary-general, Eric Drummond, had flashed telegram to Foreign Ministers in Berlin announcing Germany's election and elevation to Council. A German delegate followed on Page 2, Column
